China: List of Political Prisoners
Detained or Imprisoned as of October 10, 2010
(1,452 cases)

- This document, published by the Congressional-Executive Commission on China (CECC) contains information on political and religious prisoners currently known or believed to be detained or imprisoned in China. Cases are listed according to the date of detention in descending order, placing the most recent detentions first. The PPD was created and is maintained by the CECC and is accessible and searchable by the public at ppd.cecc.gov.
- As of October 10, 2010, the PPD contained information on a total of 5,689 cases of political or religious imprisonment in China. Of those, 1,452 are cases of political and religious prisoners currently known or believed to be detained or imprisoned, and 4,237 are cases of prisoners who are known or believed to have been released, or executed, who died while imprisoned or soon after release, or who escaped.
- The CECC notes that there are considerably more than 1,452 cases of current political and religious imprisonment in China. The CECC works on an ongoing basis to add cases of political and religious imprisonment to the PPD.
- An increase in the number of cases included on successive CECC prisoner lists indicates that new cases have been added to the PPD—but it does not indicate that all of the new cases are of detentions that took place since publication of the previous CECC prisoner list.

List does not include all Tibetan detentions on or after March 10, 2008, or all Uyghur detentions on or after July 5, 2009.

Region	According to a September 29, 2010, Phayul report, on or soon after September 19 public security officials in Zhanang (Dranang) county, Shannan (Lhokha) prefecture, TAR, detained two monks holding the rank of monastic officials from Mindrolling Monastery, located in Zhanang. Earlier in September the two monks, one named Gyurme Tenzin and the other unidentified, requested Chinese officials to permit Dralha Rinpoche to visit the monastery. (Rinpoche is an honorific indicating that Tibetan Buddhists consider him a trulku, a reincarnated Tibetan Buddhist teacher.) Dralha is regarded as the highest-ranking figure among Mindrolling teachers. On September 19, approximately 50 Mindroling monks staged a protest to support their demand that officials allow Dralha to visit Mindrolling. Security officials and People's Armed Police "cordoned off" the monastery; later approximately 80 officials arrived at Mindrolling to conduct "patriotic education" sessions. The report did not identify Dralha's usual place of residence but noted that Chinese authorities "monitored . . . his movements in Tibet." Information is not available on the two monks' place of detention.

According to RFA, the charges were related to Falun Gong materials that authorities found in Zhu's home during a sweep of Falun Gong practitioners and supporters ahead of the Asian Games in Guangzhou. Zhu had previously defended Falun Gong practitioners, and he served reeducation through labor from February 2007 to April 2008, reportedly in connection with his defense of Falun Gong practitioners. After his April 2008 release, the Guangzhou Municipal Judicial Bureau demanded that Zhu promise not to take on further Falun Gong cases. He refused, and the Bureau withheld his lawyer's license. According to RFA, Zhu's lawyer reported that the Haizhu District Procuratorate approved Zhu's formal arrest on September 20, 2010. According to Canyu, Zhu is currently held at the Haizhu District PSB Detention Center.

According to a Chinese Human Rights Defenders report (17-23 August 10), in late July 2010, authorities detained eight villagers in Raolefu village, located in the Fangshan district on the outer edge of Beijing. On July 27, a vote was held for members of the village committee. The villagers confronted officials about vote irregularities and while waiting for an explanation, police and government workers fled with the ballot box. In protest, villagers blocked traffic in the village. More than 300 police converged on the village the next day and reportedly beat and detained some villagers. Among those detained on July 28 and 29 included Zhao Yun, Ma Zhizheng, Zhao Zhenghai, Zhao Daqing, Qiu Lina, and Qiu's two twin sisters. Qiu's family said that the formal detention notice for Qiu Lina indicated that she was detained for "obstructing traffic." Another villager, Hao Sen, was detained on August 16, apparently in connection with the protests.

Kalsang Tsultrim, in his 20s, had been in hiding since August 2009 when he distributed 2,500 copies of a video of him speaking on camera about his concern for the Tibetan culture and religion and the Tibetan wish for the Dalai Lama's return to Tibet. The ICT report included an English translation of his statement. He began by referring to himself as "Gyitsang Takmig," his birthplace, and stated, "Freedom to me is a right entitled to every Tibetan in terms of preservation of culture, religion, tradition and in terms of maintaining the Tibetan way of life." "The responsibility of our new generation," he said, "is to continue to protect our Tibetan identity despite the repression and threats from the government." Prior to producing the video he had published a book and a magazine expressing his views on the Tibetan issue. Information is not available about his place of detention.

A court in Zhangjiakou city, Hebei, sentenced Wang on November 14 to three years in prison for "organizing an unlawful meeting." Wang's attorney presented a permit at the trial indicating that local authorities had approved both the church construction and the consecration ceremony. Authorities released Wang from Jidong Prison (China's largest prison, according to the Laogai Handbook 2007-2008, 152) in Tangshan city, Hebei province on July 24, 2010, according to CathNews China (28 July 2010). On his way to the front gate of the prison, several public security officers seized him and put him in a police car. Members of Wang's congregation believe that authorities took him to pressure him to affiliate with the state-controlled church, according to AsiaNews (29 July 2010). Sichuan Province	According to Dui Hua, CHRD, and HRIC, on July 5, 2010, security officials in Suining, Sichuan province arrested Liu Xianbin, a 1989 democracy movement participant on charges of "inciting subversion of state power." Liu was detained on June 28, 2010, reportedly because of articles penned by Liu posted outside of China and his support of activists and human rights defenders. Liu is a signatory to Charter 08. Previously, Liu was imprisoned in 1992 and 1999. The Beijing Intermediate People's Court sentenced him to two-and-a-half years in prison in 1992 on the charge of "counterrevolutionary propaganda and incitement," for his role in the 1989 June 4th democracy protests. Upon his release, in 1993, he founded the magazine "Citizen's Forum," organized a branch of the China Human Rights Watch group, and tried to register the Sichuan Preparatory Committee of the Chinese Democracy Party. In 1999, the Suining Intermediate People's Court sentenced Liu to 13 years for subversion as punishment for his activities. The UN Working Group on Arbitrary Detention determined Liu's 1999 detention was arbitrary. Following his formal arrest on July 5, 2010, Liu remains at the Suining Detention Center.

Officials reportedly accused Buddha (name as reported), detained June 21, and Kalsang Jinpa, detained July 19, of "inciting splittism" by writing articles about Tibet and the Tibetan protests that began in March 2008. Information is not available about their place of detention. Authorities claimed that the articles encouraged Tibetan scholars "to participate in 'splittist' activities," TPI reported. Officials also accused the men of writing for another magazine, Drum of the Time (Durab Kyinga), according to TR. RSF reported that Buddha hailed from Aba (Ngaba) T&QAP in Sichuan province, studied medicine, and became a "village doctor." Kalsang Jinpa, also from Aba, was a Tsayul Monastery monk until 1993, traveled to India and studied until 1996, then returned home.

Authorities first detained Liu, a resident of Foshan's Nan Zhuang village, on June 7. According to RFA, authorities proceeded to give Liu 10 days of criminal detention that evening for "intentionally destroying public property." On June 17, authorities continued to hold Liu in criminal detention, though this time accusing him of "obstructing official duties" that Liu allegedly committed in October 2007. CRD reported that Liu Xiantong has been active as a land rights defender since 2003, and was once detained by authorities for more than three months in 2006 as a result of his work. CRD noted that one day before his June 7 detention, Liu went to the People's Court in Guangdong province to request a copy of the judgment of a lawsuit against the Guangdong Provincial Government's illegal acquisition of land; CRD stated that Liu's recent lawsuit against the provincial government and the provincial governor maybe the primary reason why authorities detained and arrested him. Liu's current whereabouts are unknown.

On that day, Wu reportedly visited the station to help a friend whereupon the police detained and beat him after a verbal disagreement. Police reportedly claim Wu attacked them when they confiscated his cell phone. In February, Wu participated along with other artists in a street demonstration close to Tiananmen in the center of Beijing to protest being forcibly evicted from a Beijing artist community known as the "008 Art District." Reports indicate Wu later won compensation related to the eviction case. Wu reportedly believes that public security officials began to follow him and reports say people close to him think his arrest may be in retribution for his activism. After three bankruptcy filings and reorganizations, manager Zhang Xianshun became the owner. Dissatisfied with the compensation checks, workers stopped production, but authorities moved in violently to clear the strikers. In response, Miao and 28 other workers petitioned provincial authorities in Zhengzhou city, and Miao was detained when he returned to Pingdingshan. He is currently held at the Pingdingshan PSB station; no further information is available on his current status.

On May 17, authorities detained 75-year-old Dawa Khyenrab Wangchug (or Dawa, apparently regarded as a reincarnated Tibetan Buddhist teacher) and accused him of contacting the Dalai Lama about the search for the reincarnation of a Shag Rongpo teacher. Article 2 of government measures (translated by ICT) effective in 2007 asserted government control over identifying incarnations and banned involvement of any "foreign" group or individual. Officials stripped Dawa of his monastic posts, barred him from contact with Rongpo and the monks, and reportedly put him under apparent house arrest at his residence in Naqu county.

Qinghai Province	According to April 2010 reports by High Peaks Pure Earth (HPPE) and Radio Free Asia (RFA), on April 23 public security officials in Xining city, the capital of Qinghai province, detained writer Tagyal (pen name Zhogdung) from his Qinghai Nationalities Publishing House office. Police searched his home and confiscated computers and documents. RFA reported that officials formally arrested him on May 28 on the charge of inciting "splittism." He was known as an intellectual whose views "aligned with the Chinese government's views on modernization, religion, and culture in Tibet" (HPPE), but in early 2010 he published a book critical of government handling of Tibetan protests that began in 2008 (RFA). Officials closed a family-run bookshop on April 12. On April 17, after an April 14 earthquake shattered the capital of Yushu TAP in Qinghai, Tagyal signed an open letter urging Tibetans in veiled language to donate quake relief via "someone one can trust" to avoid "corruption."

The report provides more detail on 18-year-old Gyiga, who protested in the market area of the Batang town where his family lives, and reportedly displayed a Tibetan flag as he shouted slogans calling for Tibetan freedom, the Dalai Lama's invitation to visit Tibet, human rights for Tibetans, and a halt to mining in Tibet. Approximately 12 policemen seized him as he protested, allegedly beat him on the spot, then took him to a police station. As of May 2010, Gyiga's family had learned nothing about his location or wellbeing. In the other protest, 23-year-old Petrug shouted similar slogans, including the call for a halt to mining. The report did not specify the location of Petrug's protest but noted that he is from "the same region." Information is not available about criminal charges against the men or their place of detention.

According to the Southern Mongolia Human Rights Information Center (SMHRIC), officials at the Beijing Capital International Airport detained rights advocate Sodmongol, an ethnic Mongol living in Chaoyang city, Liaoning province, on April 18, 2010, as he was waiting to board a flight to the United States. Sodmongol had planned to attend the UN Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues in New York as part of a delegation arranged by U.S.-based SMHRIC. The following day, authorities in Chaoyang searched Sodmongol's home, confiscated computers and other items, and told Sodmongol's wife of his detention. Sodmongol was the administrator of two Internet forums--now shut down--that had promoted dialogue on Mongols' rights. He also organized workshops and other events to promote the protection of Mongols' rights and the use of the Mongolian language. Sources cited in a July 15, 2010, Amnesty International article conjectured that he was held in detention in Chaoyang and that the procuratorate was investigating the case, but officials did not confirm his whereabouts. Further details about his case are not known.

Three other monks protested with Abo Tashi. The report did not state whether police had detained the other three: Tsering Gyatso and Tsering Wangchug of Guru Monastery, and Rigzin (or Rinzin) Dorje of Jamchon Monastery (also located in Xinlong county). The monks displayed a Tibetan flag, tossed handwritten leaflets, and shouted slogans calling for the Dalai Lama's return, Tibetan independence, and a halt to mining activity in Xinlong. Hundreds of local Tibetans joined in the protest before shots fired into the air dispersed the protesters, TCHRD said. No information is available about Abo Tashi's place of detention.

Tibet [Xizang] Region	According to an April 5, 2010, Phayul report, public security officials detained Konchog Namgyal, age 22, for setting ablaze a Chinese flag that he removed from a "community meeting hall" in Biru (Driru) county, Naqu (Nagchu) prefecture, Tibet Autonomous Region. Based on information in the report, the flag-burning incident took place around March 20. It is not clear whether the incident took place in the Biru county seat or in a township the article referred to as Tsachu. Two weeks after detention, Kunchog Namgyal's relatives did not know where he was held, according to a Tibetan living in exile who has contacts in the Biru area. Under Article 299 of China's Criminal Law, "desecration" of the national flag can be punished with a period of imprisonment not more than three years.

Police placed a hood over his head and took him away. According to RFA "local information," officials detained Trinle for making phone calls to a location "outside of Tibet." He previously had worked as an official in Ngari prefecture, TAR, but was dismissed for criticizing Chinese policy in Tibet. He continued to live in Ngari as a businessman, a relative told RFA. A Tibet Express report (14 July 10, apparently reporting on the same person (Trinle; age 45; born in Markham; trader in Ngari prior to detention), provided a different detention date (mid-February), detention location (Lhasa), and reason for detention (listening to news about Tibet broadcast by media organizations outside of China and sharing information about the broadcasts with other persons). Trinle was held in a Chamdo prefecture detention center, the report said.

Luo was reportedly held in criminal detention upon his return to Shaoyang for taking part in a December 2008 teachers' strike in Hunan to demand wages and benefits comparable to those given to civil servants. In late January 2010, Hunan authorities sentenced him to 2 years' reeducation through labor (RTL) for "disrupting social order." While in detention, authorities reportedly forced Luo to work 16 hours per day and only allowed him to sleep 4 hours per night, according to a Boxun article. Tang Jingling, a rights lawyer who had spoken to Luo's wife, told NTDTV that the RTL sentence was also related to his involvement with the case of Yang Kuansheng, the former deputy mayor of Wugang city in Hunan province. Before Luo's arrest, he was assisting Yang's family to seek justice in Beijing; Yang's family had rejected the local authorities' conclusion that he committed suicide by jumping out of a building in November 2009. Boxun reported that authorities transferred Luo to the Shaoyang city RTL detention center on March 6.

Region	Based on June 2010 HRW (1, 2), RFA (1, 2), Reuters, and AP (via Phayul, 1, 2) reports, on January 3, 2010, security officials detained environmentalist, art collector, and businessman Karma Samdrub in Chengdu, the Sichuan province capital. Officials transferred him to Yanqi Hui Autonomous County, Bayinguoleng Mongol Auto. Prefecture, XUAR, to face trial on 1998 charges of "tomb robbing" and trafficking in cultural relics that were dropped the same year. Persons close to Karma Samdrub, founder of the Three River Environmental Protection Association, believe that police in Changdu prefecture, TAR, hoped to use the old charge to punish him for trying to gain release for his brothers Rinchen Samdrub and Chime Namgyal, whom Chamdo police detained in August 2009 after they accused police of hunting protected wildlife. On June 22, 2010, the Yanqi People's Court tried Karma Dondrub on the old charges, and on June 24 sentenced him to 15 years in prison for "tomb robbing" (Criminal Law, Article 328). The Bayinguoleng Intermediate People's Court rejected his appeal. Karma Dondrub accused police of torturing and abusing him prior to the trial.

The report provides more detail on 18-year-old Gyiga, who protested in the market area of the Batang town where his family lives, and reportedly displayed a Tibetan flag as he shouted slogans calling for Tibetan freedom, the Dalai Lama's invitation to visit Tibet, human rights for Tibetans, and a halt to mining in Tibet. Approximately 12 policemen seized him as he protested, allegedly beat him on the spot, then took him to a police station. As of May 2010, Gyiga's family had learned nothing about his location or wellbeing. In the other protest, 23-year-old Petrug shouted similar slogans, including the call for a halt to mining. The report did not specify the location of Petrug's protest but noted that he is from "the same region." Information is not available about criminal charges against the men or their place of detention.

Qinghai Province	According to a December 8, 2009, TCHRD report, on December 4 security officials in Madoe (Matoe) county, Guoluo (Golog) TAP, Qinghai province, detained 11 Tibetans involved in releasing on September 1 a video compact disc (VCD) entitled "Bloody Omen" that authorities deemed to be subversive. The songs included themes such as nostalgia for the Dalai Lama and sorrow over the deaths of Tibetan protestors killed during protests in 2008. Police detained 6 persons (5 named) for allegedly distributing free of charge about 5,000 VCDs: Gyebo (an abbot), Gowang, and Tashi Nyima of Tsakho Monastery; Markyi and another monk of Khakhor Monastery; and a layman named Garab Dorje. Officials reportedly fined each man accused of distributing the VCDs 10,000 yuan, released all six on bail, and gave them until December 10 to recover the VCDs or be returned to detention. In addition, police detained 5 monks from the same monasteries for allegedly producing the VCDs.

In October (ICT), Tashi Dondrub, a member of a performing arts troupe in Yulgan (Henan) Mongol Autonomous County, Huangnan (Malho) TAP, Qinghai, published a CD titled Torture Without Words containing songs expressing nostalgia for the Dalai Lama and pain over the situation following the March 2008 Tibetan protests and rioting. Officials accused him of composing "subversive" lyrics and banned the album but the 5,000-CD release had sold out (TL). Tashi Dondrub reportedly was also beaten and detained in November 2008 in connection with another song focused on the Dalai Lama (ICT). RFA reported in March 2010 that on January 5, 2010, the Henan RTL Committee ordered Tashi Dondrub to serve 15 months' RTL for singing songs with "provocative themes." No information is available on his place of imprisonment.

According to Human Rights in China, police from Beijing's Daxing district and Tuanhe substation detained tainted milk activist Zhao Lianhai on November 13, 2009. When Zhao refused to leave with police because the summons did not provide a reason for the detention, police filled in "creating a disturbance," a crime under Article 293 of the Criminal Law. Police took two computers, a camera, video recorder, and other items from his home. CHRD reported that Zhao was formally arrested on December 17. Zhao's son became sick after drinking melamine-tainted milk powder, in a scandal that broke open in 2008, affecting thousands of children. He organized a support group for parents online. He also set up a Web site for the organization, called "Home for Kidney Stone Babies." Zhao's lawyer, Li Fangping, said the current charges are related to his protest, including a press conference, over the tainted milk. He is currently being held at the Daxing Public Security Bureau Detention Center.

Zeng Xiaofeng	曾孝凤					F	46	PSB?	2009/10/20	Sichuan (general location)		Sichuan Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders, authorities in Beijing seized petitioner Zeng Xiaofeng, from Zigong city, Sichuan province, on October 20, 2009, and detained her along with four other Zigong petitioners in Majialou, a black jail in Beijing. They had gone to Beijing to petition about the seizure of their land by local officials. On October 24, Zeng and the other petitioners were forcibly returned to Zigong. After being interrogated by authorities from the Fenghuang county police station (under the Da'an District PSB), Zeng disappeared. According to her family, she is currently being held in a black jail in Zigong, but her precise whereabouts are unknown. A local official reportedly said that Zeng had "illegally traveled to Beijing to petition" and that they had the authority to send her off to be "educated." Zeng has reportedly been detained by the Zigong government five times for "illegal petitioning."

The report alleged that officials forced Zhao to confess to a crime by subjecting him to physical abuse, including sleep deprivation and death threats. The report did not state the crime Zhao is alleged to have committed. A court in Xiong County held his trial in April 2010. The court held another hearing on June 1, 2010, and requested that Zhao provide evidence of the forced confession. Another report by Clear Harmony (17 October 09) said that officials previously detained Zhao during the 2008 Beijing Summer Olympics in July 2008. At that time, authorities were attempting to detain Zhao's mother, also a Falun Gong practitioner, when they detained Zhao. The report did not specify the charges against Zhao or the length of his detention. The report said Zhao escaped from custody. Zhao is a government worker in Anxin county, Hebei. He is reportedly being held at the Xiong County Detention Center.

According to CHRD, Chongqing rights defender and petitioner Zhong Shengniu was seized by Beijing authorities on September 25, 2009, and taken to a black jail along with Chongqing petitioner Bai Zhongmei. On September 27, officials from Zhong's place of residence, Qijiang city, Chongqing municipality arrived at the Beijing black jail to take Zhong back to Qijiang. Zhong reportedly said that the Qijiang authorities handed the black jail operators more than 10,000 yuan as "payment" for not reporting to relevant authorities the fact that Zhong was petitioning in Beijing. As of September 29, Zhong was being held at a farm in Qijiang, guarded by three individuals, who told him that he would not be released until after October 15. CHRD surmises that Zhong's detention is connected to the 60th anniversary of the founding of the PRC on October 1.

Shenzhen Public Security Bureau (PSB) authorities have not confirmed the sentence, but they have not denied it either. Guo has not been seen since September 18, 2009 after local police called him in "for a talk." Guo disappeared the day after hearing that a Shenzhen court would hear his lawsuit against the Public Order branch of the Shenzhen Municipal PSB on September 29 for arbitrarily detaining him earlier in 2009. Guo has been detained several times during politically sensitive periods and for allegedly "illegally engaging in civil society activity." Guo had established the Citizens' Association for Government Oversight to monitor corruption issues. According to Boxun, Guo has been a democracy activist since 2002.

Officials reportedly deemed Choedar a leader of a large-scale protest in the Aba county seat in March 2008 and issued a warrant for his detention. (Kirti monks and other Tibetans staged an initially peaceful protest on March 16, 2008, that China Daily (26 March 08) reported became a riot resulting in property destruction.) Available reports have not attributed violent activity to Choedar. Police accused Donkho and Solha of sheltering Choedar and helping him evade capture until August 2009. Police released Solha after approximately five months. On April 9, 2010, the Aba Intermediate People's Court sentenced Choedar to 13 years in prison. On September 25, 2010, the same court sentenced Donkho to 5 years in prison for sheltering Choedar (probably Criminal Law, Art. 310). 2010-00373	DET	labor/association	Han	Zhao Dongmin	赵东民					M		PSB	2009/08/19	Xincheng PSB Det. Ctr.		Shaanxi Province	According to RFA (27 Aug 09), authorities in Xi'an city, Shaanxi province, went to the home of labor organizer Zhao Dongmin on August 19, 2009, and took him to the city's Xincheng district PSB station, where he was held in criminal detention for "gathering a crowd to disrupt social order." Reportedly, Zhao formed a study group in April 2009 consisting of about 20 labor activists to represent the interests of about 300 workers from area enterprises. Zhao then applied to the Shaanxi provincial trade union and the Shaanxi provincial party to have his group officially registered. He also went to Beijing and submitted a letter making the same request to the All-China Federation of Trade Unions. In September 2010, another RFA report (8 September 10) indicated that Zhao was still in custody, though his exact location is not known, and reported that his lawyer was not allowed to "read the evidence or to visit" Zhao. Authorities also refused to release Zhao to visit his wife during her illness; she died on August 31, 2010.

On August 13, while Xu in custody at the Beijing No. 1 Detention Center, he was arrested for tax evasion. On August 14, Xu had his first meeting with lawyers Zhou Ze and Li Fangping. Xu's detention came shortly after authorities forced the closure of OCI (Gongmeng), a legal research and assistance organization that promoted rule of law and human rights, purportedly for alleged tax problems. On July 17, the Beijing Bureau of Civil Affairs raided the OCI office and declared it an "illegal" organization. Police have also taken OCI's chief financial officer, Zhuang Lu, into custody. Xu was released on bail on August 23, 2009.

Ctr.	6	Hunan Province	CHRD reports that the Furong District Court, Changsha city, Hunan province on March 26, 2010 sentenced Xie Fulin to six years in prison for "theft" of electricity. The court also fined him 30,000 yuan and ordered him to pay 28,000 yuan for the electricity he was accused of stealing. He is currently in the Changsha PSB Detention Ctr. On July 23, 2009, PSB officials in Furong detained Xie and on August 24 formally arrested him and his brother, Xie Shulin, on suspicion of "theft." According to Xie's wife, Xie was accused of stealing electricity but was set up in retaliation for assisting the disadvantaged, petitioning in Beijing, revealing local officials' alleged illegal behavior, for signing Charter 08, and other political activities. Xie is a member of the "illegal" Union of Chinese Nationalists. Previously, Xie was detained for attending a celebration in Sichuan of Ma Yingjeou's presidential victory in Taiwan and was sentenced on June 11, 2008 to 15 days of administrative detention.

Yonten Gyatso, about 40 years old and a native of Dege county, Ganzi (Kardze) Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan province, ran along the track in the Changdu sports stadium as he displayed and distributed leaflets calling on Tibetans to "protest for the cause of Tibet," according to an RFA source. The leaflets provided Yonten Gyatso's name. Tibetans who had gathered in the stadium cheered him on, and when "a convoy of police vehicles rushed to the scene with sirens blaring," a "melee" ensued and Yonten Gyatso escaped. Security officials detained him on July 21. No details are available about Yonten Gyatso's place of detention or criminal charges, if any, against him.

Sun is currently at the Lanzhou Anning District RTL detention center. As reported in a CHRD article, Sun's wife said Sun had recently told the central government and human rights groups that officials in Diebu county had exaggerated evidence of earthquake damage in order to obtain earthquake relief funds. CHRD and HRIC reports also noted Sun's longstanding activities exposing pollution and health risks from a local uranium mine, for which he had been detained on April 28, 2005 while petitioning in Beijing. He was released from detention in Lanzhou Prison on December 27, 2005. Sun was held briefly again in April 2006 for continuing to petition. Sun's request for administrative reconsideration was denied in late 2009, said CHRD.

Authorities based the arrest on a document from the Ministry of Housing and Urban-Rural Development that he had downloaded from the Internet in 2007. The document concerned a property matter that Lin followed as organizer of a group that has sought the return of property the government took in 1956. The group had been active since the 1970s, and Lin had been petitioning for about 10 years. The Jiaojiang District People's Court tried Lin in a closed trial on November 6, 2009, and sentenced him to two years for possession of state secrets. Authorities reportedly held Sun's daughter for a month at an extralegal detention center for Falun Gong practitioners. The Tancheng County People's Court tried Sun and his wife on November 11, 2009 and convicted them in January 2010 of "using a cult organization to undermine the implementation of the law" (Criminal Law, Art. 300). The court sentenced Sun's wife to 8 years and 6 months in prison and gave Sun a 3 year sentence, suspended for 5 years. The family's attorneys, Cheng Hai and Li Jinglin, argued that prosecutors failed to establish guilt of illegal activity. Authorities released Sun on probation, while Zhang, who has appealed her case, is being held at the Linyi PSB Detention Center.

Hunan Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders, police in Changsha city, Hunan province, detained rights defender Li Zhuoxi in May 2009. He is being held at the Changsha No. 1 PSB Center. The current charges against him are unclear. He recently helped organize a group called Citizens' Association for Government Oversight. Li also signed Charter 08, a document released in December 2008 and signed by thousands of Chinese citizens. Charter 08 calls for political reforms and greater human rights in China. On June 3, 2008, police in Sichuan detained Li on charges of "Internet fraud." He had designed T-shirts blaming poor construction for the large number of casualties in the May 2008 Sichuan earthquake. Two days later, he was transferred to Changsha, where he was detained for one month. He was released but kept under residential surveillance until September 18. He is reportedly a member of the Pan Blue Alliance, a group that declares allegiance to Sun Yat-sen.

Wu's detention came about an hour after an open letter he and five others signed was made public and days before the 20th anniversary of the 1989 Tiananmen protests. The letter, addressed to President Hu Jintao and other Chinese leaders, sought economic redress for those imprisoned in the protests. In 1989, officials sentenced Wu, then a teacher, to two years in prison for leading student protests in Zhejiang. The open letter said ex-prisoners had no regular jobs, pensions, or medical insurance. Wu had also joined thousands of Chinese citizens in signing Charter 08, a document calling for human rights and political reforms. The charges against Wu are not known and police reportedly provided no documents for Wu's detention. CHRD reported on June 11 that Wu was still detained in Zhejiang.

Public security bureau officers in Bao'an district, Shenzhen municipality, Guangdong province, detained Xue on May 9, 2009 and he was formally arrested on June 15. Authorities claimed Xue had joined the overseas China Democracy Party in 2009 and had recruited other individuals. In addition, authorities alleged that in the summer of 2006, Xue had planned to organize a "China Democratic Workers' Party" online. The first session of Xue's trial opened on September 10, 2009 and a second session took place on December 14. According to his mother, court authorities did not acknowledge medical records from 2006 showing that Xue had a mental illness. The court accepted two court-ordered psychological evaluations conducted after his detention alleging Xue had no mental illness during the period when the crime was committed. Xue expressed an intention to appeal the judgment, but information on the status of an appeal, if any, is unknown.

On August 30, the Erlanhaote City People's Court ruled that Zhang had violated Article 321 of the Criminal Law by "transporting people secretly across the national border" with Mongolia, and sentenced him to 7 years in prison. Another Chinese citizen of Korean ethnicity, Li Mingshun, was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment along with Zhang. The defendants viewed their activities as "rescuing refugees," according to official court documents. The UN recognizes North Koreans in China as "refugees sur place," but the Chinese government repatriates them despite this designation. Zhang's last known place of detention was the Erlanhaote City Detention Center.

Sichuan Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD), public security officers in Chengdu detained rights activist Zeng Rongkang on March 20, 2009, for allegedly "gathering crowds to disturb social order." His detention related to a February 23, 2009 protest at the Chengdu Intermediate People's Court, in which many aggrieved citizens demonstrated, demanding justice. According to CHRD, Zeng has engaged in citizens' rights defense work for a long time. At least four other individuals -- Huang Xiaomin, Xing Qingxian, Lu Dajun and Yan Wenhan -- were arrested for "disturbing social order" following the February 23 protest. CHRD further reported that the police told Zeng that they considered him the primary culprit in the February 23 protest and would therefore deal with him harshly. Authorities formally arrested him on April 1, and he is currently being held at the Chengdu Municipal Detention Center. He will reportedly be tried sometime in mid-February 2010.

Hebei Province	According to commentary posted on the All China Environment Federation Web site, public security officials in Chengde county, Hebei province detained Gong Dianfeng, Cui Mingrong, and Gong Diange, on March 17, 2009, on suspicion of assembling a crowd to disturb social order. The detentions came after they had blocked a road on two occasions between March 2 and March 11, 2009, to prevent people associated with a nearby mining company from transporting mine slag to a reservoir for dumping. The mining company had accused them of interfering in normal production. On April 22, 2009, 37 days later, the Chengde county procuratorate approved the order to formally arrest Gong Dianfeng, Cui Mingrong, and Gong Diange on the charge of assembling a crowd to disrupt social order. Reportedly, the Chongde county court heard this case on October 15, 2009. Further information about this case, including where the three people are being held in detention is unknown.

Shandong Province	According to Civil Rights & Livelihood Watch, on March 6, 2009, authorities in Qufu city, Shandong province searched the home of Shandong teachers' representative Wang Diangang and detained him on suspicion of illegal possession of state secrets. That same day, Qufu authorities also searched the home of fellow representative Kong Lingxi. In December 2008, Wang and other representatives of thousands of laid-off teachers at community-run (minban) schools traveled to Beijing to submit an application to hold a demonstration. In January 2009, Qufu authorities detained Wang for seven days for disrupting social order. The state secrets reportedly found in Wang's home were documents regarding the teachers. He is currently being held at the Qufu Public Security Bureau Detention Center.

Clearwisdom reported that police detained them on February 28, 2009, for distributing Falun Gong-related DVDs. Panlong District police in Kunming arrested them on March 27. The September trial was reportedly held in secret without prior notice to the families of the defendants. After trial, officials notified the families of the sentences but provided no further information on the verdicts. Dong is serving his sentence at the Yunnan No. 1 Prison. Geng is serving her sentence at the Panlong No. 1 Detention Center. Both are employees at the Yunnan Forestry College. In April 2000, Dong was detained for 15 days for disturbing social order and the college later lowered his salary. In November 2003, college officials attempted to revoke Dong's teaching license. Officials required Dong to get their approval to travel on holidays and to be available for questioning during politically sensitive time periods.

Sichuan Province	Based on February 2009 TCHRD, RFA, and FTC reports, public security officials and PAP detained between 13 (RFA) and 24 (FTC) Tibetan protesters on February 15-16, 2009, in the seat of Litang (Lithang) county, Ganzi (Kardze) TAP, Sichuan province. On February 16, a group of 14-15 Tibetans shouting slogans (incl. "No Losar") began to protest in the Litang market against the detention the previous day of monk Lobsang Lhundrub for staging a solo protest. Lobsang Lhundrub's brother, Sonam Tenpa, led the February 16 protest carrying a Dalai Lama photo; brothers Jampa Thogme and Lobsang Tenzin joined in (TCHRD). The protest did not last long but grew to more than 300 persons before PAP began beating protesters with rifle butts and batons (FTC). A source told the Washington Post that some protesters threw stones. PAP beat the brothers so badly that sources were unsure if they survived (RFA). Officials took the detainees, including Jampa Tsering, to "Tsaka" detention center 6 km from Litang.

After interrogation authorities criminally detained Huang. Huang had served as a judge at the Tumuxiuke Court, within the Xinjiang Production and Construction Corps, and had earlier been in the army in Qinghai province. While in the army, Huang had been involved in nuclear testing. A 2007 government notice mandated that dismissed soldiers who were involved in such activity be given medical tests and benefits for resulting damage to their health. In 2008, Huang led 17 army veterans to the Bureau of Civil Affairs and complained that this notice had not been implemented locally. The bureau recognized that the notice was applicable to Huang's group, but they have so far received no testing or benefits. Huang is currently being held at Tumuxiuke Detention Center in Bachu county, Kashgar municipality.

According to RFA's source, Ngawang Sonam tossed into the air a large number of protest leaflets and slips of paper with Tibetan prayers printed on them. After about 3 minutes, security officials fired a "tranquilizer gun" at him, beat him, and took him away. Confirmation about the type of device that police fired is not available (e.g., whether it may have been a high voltage stun gun.) No information is available about Ngawang Sonam's place of detention or criminal charges, if any, against him. A PSB official whom RFA reached by phone appeared to recognize his name but did not confirm his detention. RFA's source said that Ngawang Sonam was detained in 2000 for another political protest.

The Beijing High People's Court denied his appeal on February 11, 2010. Prosecutors said Liu drafted and organized Charter 08, signed by thousands of Chinese and calling for political reform and protection of human rights. Liu was also punished for six essays he wrote that were posted on overseas Web sites. The essays were critical of Chinese Communist Party rule but did not advocate violence; one specifically called for non-violence. Liu was taken into custody on December 8, 2008, a day before Charter 08 was released. He was kept in residential surveillance under conditions that violated Chinese law and arrested on June 23, 2009. Liu was detained in 1989 after the Tiananmen protests and served three years reeducation through labor for his writings in 1996. He is serving his sentence at the Jinzhou Prison in Liaoning province. On October 8, 2010, the Norwegian Nobel Committee awarded Liu the Nobel Peace Prize for 2010.

Clear Wisdom (9 March 2010, 10 April 2009) reported that domestic security protection personnel in Weifang city detained Cao on July 29, 2008, one week before the start of the 2008 Olympics, and held her in the Qingzhou detention center. Pang Jin, Cao's daughter and a U.S. resident, said she had seen reports that 40-50 Falun Gong practitioners may have been taken into custody in Shandong in a pre-Olympics roundup, and she believes her mother is one of them, according to News-Leader. According to the 2010 Clear Wisdom report, the Kuiwen District People's Court sentenced Cao to 10 years in prison on October 19, 2009. Information about the charges against Cao is not available, and the current location at which she is serving her sentence is unknown.

The sentence was suspended for four years. The court found that Du wrote and posted 26 articles on the Internet to incite subversion, and had accepted fund from overseas organizations. Du appealed, and the Hubei High People's Court upheld the sentence on August 4, 2004. Under Chinese law, the period of a suspended sentence starts from the date the judgment is made final. Du's wife said the suspended sentence was set to expire on August 3, 2008. On July 21, 2008, police in Yingcheng city, Hubei, detained Du, saying he violated the terms of his suspended sentence by publishing more than 100 articles overseas, leaving his home, and receiving visitors without prior approval. BBC reported that the Xiaogan court reinstated Du's original sentence. Du is serving his sentence at the Wuhan Prison.

Officials detained five others, including Xie's brother Xie Changzhen, who were later released. Xie Changfa was formally arrested on August 1, for "subverting state power." Reports indicated that the charge related to Xie's attempts to convene a national China Democracy Party meeting. According to his lawyer, on June 8, 2008, Xie and other members of the CDP held a meeting in Changsha to discuss the national meeting. On September 1, 2009, the Changsha Intermediate People's Court sentenced Xie to 13 years in prison for subversion. Xie was previously imprisoned during the government crackdown on the CDP in 1998. Xie's lawyer said he was not able to meet with him until more than four months after his detention. Xie is currently being held at the Changqiao Detention Center in Changsha.

Monks Tsewang Dragpa, Thubten Gyatso, and Jangsem Nyima (from Yushu TAP, Qinghai province) called for Tibetan freedom and the Dalai Lama's return to Tibet. Eyewitnesses said that security officials kicked, punched, and shocked the monks with electric batons, then took them to the county hospital for medical care. Dui Hua reported in June 2009 based on a November 2008 Ganzi Daily article that the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court sentenced the monks on November 5, 2008, to imprisonment: Tsewang Dragpa, 5 years; Thubten Gyatso, 4 years; and Karma Choephel (apparently the monk that TCHRD named as Jangsem Nyima), 3 years. No details are available about the criminal charges against the monks or their place of imprisonment.

Xu is reportedly held in an unknown detention facility in Douhe. Since 2007, Xu has led local teachers in demanding higher wages. After he submitted a petition in March signed by 1,000 teachers, Xu reported being followed by school board officials. Between May and June, Xu represented the teachers in filing lawsuits against the local government, but the courts refused to accept the case. After visiting the Hubei Provincial High People's Court on June 1, Xu was taken to an "education class" by Douhe educational authorities, under the pretext of "discussing the issue." Douhe educational officials told Xu's family that his detention was ordered by the Xiantao city Party secretary.

The nuns, angered by patriotic education and demands to denounce the Dalai Lama, called for Tibetan independence and the Dalai Lama's return. PSB and PAP detained the nuns, beating some. On May 18, officials detained Pangri's head and founder, Phurbu Tsering Rinpoche, considered a reincarnated Tibetan Buddhist teacher. NYT reported the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court put Phurbu Tsering on trial on April 21, 2009, for illegal weapons possession and embezzlement, charges lawyer Jiang Tianyong said were baseless and "politically motivated." Lawyer Li Fanping told AP in April that a pistol and cartridges allegedly found under Phurbu Tsering's bed weren't sourced or checked for finger prints. The court sentenced Phurbu Tsering on December 23, 2009, to 8 years and 6 months in prison, TCHRD and BBC reported.

The essays had been posted on "reactionary" overseas Web sites and had been read or commented on by more than 2,500 people. The court also cited Zhang saying he published the essays because he believed China should transform politically and have a multi-party system. The court did not provide any evidence that Zhang advocated violence. In his defense, Zhang claimed he was exercising his right to free speech. Officials detained Zhang on May 16, 2008, and formally arrested him on June 20. The TGIE reported that Gaden Choeling nuns Yeshe Choetso, Gyalga Lhamo, Deyang, and Choetso staged another protest near the government offices at 4:00 PM the same day. Security officials detained them. In January 2009 the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court sentenced Pema Lhamo to 3 years in prison, TCHRD reported in February. Officials may have transferred her to a prison near Chengdu city. Details are not available about the charges and legal proceedings against Pema Lhamo.

A large number (300, according to TCHRD) of PAP and public security officials blocked the nuns at a bridge on the town's outskirts and prevented them from proceeding farther. Nuns Dorje Khadro, Pema Lhamo, and Tagdron, however, breached the security barrier and at approximately 9:00 AM they began to protest and shout slogans near the county government offices. Within minutes security officials beat and detained the three nuns. The Tibetan government-in-exile reported that another group of Gaden Choeling nuns protested near the government office at 4:00 PM on the same day: Yeshe Choetso (or Yiga), Gyalga Lhamo, Deyang, and Choetso. Sichuan Province	According to TCHRD and ICT, on May 14, 2008, more than 50 nuns of Pangri Nunnery, located in Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi TAP, Sichuan province, set out on a protest march from the nunnery to the county government offices, about 2 km away. They shouted slogans calling for Tibetan independence, the Dalai Lama's return to Tibet, and the Dalai Lama's long life. PSB and PAP personnel detained the nuns en route and beat some nuns severely. On May 18, officials detained Phurbu Tsering, the Tibetan reincarnated teacher who headed the nunnery. Aggressive patriotic education campaigns and demands by officials that the nuns denounce the Dalai Lama had angered the nuns, as well as (according to TCHRD) government claims that the Dalai Lama "masterminded" the Tibetan protests following March 10. No details are available about the detainees' site of detention or criminal charges (if any) against them. Wotso was one of the nuns detained.

Sichuan Province	According to a TCHRD report, on the morning of May 14, 2008, "scores" of nuns from Gaden Choeling Nunnery, located near the seat of Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi TAP, Sichuan province, attempted to stage a protest march from the nunnery to the county seat. A large number of People's Armed Police and public security officials blocked the nuns at a bridge on town's outskirts and prevented them from proceeding farther. TCHRD reported that nuns Dorje Khadro, Pema Lhamo, and Tagdron breached the security barrier and at approximately 9:00 AM they began to protest and shout slogans near the county government offices. Security officials beat and detained them. The Tibetan government-in-exile reported that Gaden Choeling nuns Yeshe Choetso (or Yiga), Gyalga Lhamo, Deyang, and Choetso staged another protest near the government offices at 4:00 PM the same day. Security officials detained them. No information is available about the nuns' place of detention or criminal charges, if any, against them.

Authorities alleged that Chen "spread rumors" regarding a proposed chemical plant near Chengdu. Chen's formal arrest came on June 13. Days before he was detained, Chen published an article on a foreign Web site saying construction of the plant should be halted for environmental reasons. According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders, on November 5, the Chengdu Intermediate People's Court tried Chen for "inciting splittism." On November 21, the court sentenced Chen to three years for "inciting subversion," citing online articles he wrote supporting the Tibetan protesters but making no mention of his role in protesting the chemical plant. Chen is serving his sentence at the Chuangzhong Prison in Nanchong city, Sichuan.

Region	According to Radio Free Asia (RFA), public security officials in Lhasa city, Tibet Autonomous Region, took 63 year-old retired "border patrol" employee Shilog away from his residence after midnight on May 3, 2008. Authorities allegedly accused him of passing to sources outside of China information about the death and detention of Tibetan protestors in Lhasa (probably in connection with March protests), and about local prison conditions. On May 6, security officials detained Shilog's wife, Yangzom, a retired doctor who had worked at Lhasa People's Hospital, and accused her of taking medication, including pain killers, from the hospital in order to treat injured Tibetan protestors. Authorities also accused Shilog of aiding protestors at a hospital. Security officials took Shilog to Lhasa PSB Detention Center (Gutsa), but Yangzom's place of detention is unknown. Details about charges against the couple, if any, are not available.

Officials accused him of having links with the "separatist forces of the Dalai Clique," according to a Tibetan group in India. On January 14, 2010, an unidentified court in an unspecified location (possibly the Aba Intermediate People's Court, located in Ma'erkang (Barkham), the Aba prefectural capital) sentenced Drolma Namgyal to six years' imprisonment. His family received no information about his status or location until he was sentenced. He serving his sentence near Chengdu in a prison with a name that sounds like "Binjiang," according to the report. No information is available to account for the approximately 21-month period between Drolma Namgyal's detention and his reported sentencing, or on whether or not he had access to legal counsel.

According to Ganzi Daily, he "colluded" with Jigme Gonpo, a student at a Tibetan Buddhist thangka painting academy in Kangding, to produce the flag. Shopkeepers closed businesses in fear that a riot would ensue, Ganzi Daily said. On October 29, 2008, the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court, located in Kangding, sentenced Sherab Zangpo to six years in prison for "inciting splittism." No information is available about his place of imprisonment. Jigme Gonpo faced prosecution in a separate case, Ganzi Daily said. Dongthog Monastery, located in Ganzi county, Ganzi TAP, adheres to the Sakya tradition of Tibetan Buddhism.

Officials detained Adrel Rinpoche (a reincarnated Tibetan Buddhist teacher, or trulku) on March 16 and Trinle Namgyal on March 18 after (according to a Phayul report) People's Armed Police surrounded and sealed off the monastery. The PAP action followed a March 10 protest in Lhasa that included several Dza Bonpo monks who were studying at Sera Monastery. On March 31 (April 1, according to CDT) officials detained herdsman Yiga and seven Dza Bonpo monks (Lobsang Dondrub, Lobsang Yangphel, Sonam Nyima, Thubten Tsering, Sopal, Paldor, and Wudor) for protesting against the demands of a patriotic education team to denounce the Dalai Lama. No information is available about the detainees' place of detention or criminal charges, if any, against them.

(general location)	9	Sichuan Province	Based on a May 2010 International Campaign for Tibet report, on March 29, 2008, security officials detained 29-year-old monk Trintse of Kirti Monastery, located in Aba (Ngaba) county, Aba Tibetan and Qiang Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan province. The Aba People's Intermediate Court, located in the Aba prefectural capital Ma'erkang (Barkham), sentenced Trintse in November 2008 to nine years' imprisonment for "revealing state secrets," according to sources who were in contact with Tibetans in Aba. Details are not available about the alleged "state secrets" or to whom Trintse allegedly revealed them. ("Disclosing state secrets" to entities outside of China is a crime under China's Criminal Law, Article 111.) Trintse was an "active blogger and writer," the report said. Information is not available about his place of imprisonment. Several monks of Tagtsang Lhamo Monastery, closely associated with Kirti Monastery and located in adjacent Ruo'ergai (Dzoegé) county, were also detained on March 29, according to CECC Political Prisoner Database information.

Police detained Dondrub Wangchen on March 26 in Tongde county, Hainan TAP, Qinghai, and Labrang Tashikhyil monk Jigme Gyatso on March 23 in Linxia city, Gansu province. The men filmed 108 Tibetans; most spoke openly on camera. The film left China before police detained the men. The documentary, featuring 20 speakers, opened in August 2008. RFA reported in July 2009 that officials barred lawyer Li Dunyong from representing Dondrub Wangchen; HRW reported that he was charged with "inciting separatism." The Xining Intermediate People's Court sentenced Dondrub Wangchen on December 28, 2009, to 6 years in prison for splittism (RFA, 6 January 10); his family intended to appeal. Authorities transferred him to Xichuan Prison in Xining city, Qinghai Province (Filming for Tibet, 19 May 10).

The detention may have taken place on the date of the protest. According to an International Campaign for Tibet report, Tibetans staged a political protest in Kangding (Dartsedo), the Ganzi TAP capital, on March 26. On October 29, the Kangding Intermediate People's Court sentenced Loga to three years' imprisonment. The TCHRD report did not provide information about the criminal charges against Loga, or about the type of activity that officials accused Loga of carrying out during the protest. No violent activity was reported to have occurred at the protest. Details about Loga's place of imprisonment are not available.

Sichuan Province	Based on TCHRD, Tibetan government-in-exile, and China Digital Times reports, on March 25, 2008, security officials detained 9 Tibetans in Chogri village, located near the seat of Luhuo (Draggo) county, Ganzi (Kardze) TAP, Sichuan province. The 9 Tibetans included 4 Chogri Monastery monks (Lobsang Wangchen, abbot; Khetsun, a former abbot; Sherab; and Tashi) and five lay persons (Kalsang Dawa, Kunyang, Palden Sherab, Tharchin, and Tsewang Gyatso). The detentions took place the day after hundreds of Tibetans participated in a large political protest near the country government offices. As protesters marched to the offices, PAP and Tibetans "clashed" (TCHRD) and PAP opened fire, killing one Tibetan and critically injuring another. Xinhua reported that PAP fired in self-defense after Tibetans attacked them with knives and stones, killing 1 officer. No information is available about Kalsang Dawa's protest activity, his place of detention, or criminal charges, if any, against him.

Officials formally arrested him on April 26 for "inciting splittism," a crime under Article 103 of China's Criminal Law. The Diqing Intermediate People's Court convicted him on October 27 and sentenced him to 3 years in prison. The verdict said that on March 16-18 (after Tibetan protests started on March 10) Gonpo Tserang "used the Internet and a mobile telephone to send inflammatory email and text messages that distorted the facts and true situation regarding social stability" to persons outside China. The Yunnan High People's Court rejected his appeal on January 5, 2009. Gonpo Tserang is from Ruo'ergai county in Aba T&QAP, Sichuan province, an area where Tibetans staged a number of protests following March 10, 2008.

Gansu Province	Based on a TCHRD prisoner list, on March 23, 2008, security officials in Zhuoni (Chone) county, Gannan (Kanlho) TAP, Gansu province, detained at least 25 Akhor Monastery monks for protesting on an unspecified date. It is not clear, however, whether "Akhor" is the correct name of the monastery. The Tibetan Government-in-exile reported that officials detained "many" monks of Chone's Tashi Choeling Monastery after they protested peacefully on March 23. China Digital Times reported that on March 16 monks protested at "many" Gannan TAP monasteries, including in Zhuoni, but that there were no "clashes;" on March 17, however, protesting students broke shop windows. Reuters reported that Zhuoni protesters damaged official buildings and property in "mid-March." Xinhua reported rioting during protests on March 14-19 in six Gannan counties, including Zhuoni. Details are not available about Zoepa's protest activity, place of detention, or charges, if any, against him.

Police detained Tashikhyil monk Thabkhe Gyatso for taking part in the same protest. On May 21, 2009, the Gannan Intermediate People's Court sentenced Tsultrim Gyatso to life imprisonment and Thabkhe Gyatso to 15 years in prison for "endangering state security," TCHRD said. RFA reported in July 2009 that officials barred Beijing-based lawyer Li Fangping from providing legal counsel to the monks. RFA reported in March 2010, based on Thabkhe Gyatso's official verdict document, that he protested on March 14, 2008, was detained on March 22, and was sentenced for "splittism" under Art. 103 of China's Criminal Law. No information is available about the monks' place of imprisonment.

Authorities accused him of illegally printing and distributing Bibles. Shi was detained on November 28, 2007 on a similar charge, but due to "insufficient evidence" authorities released Shi on bail on January 4, 2008. On June 10, 2009, the Beijing Haidian District People's Court sentenced Shi to three years in prison and fined him 150,000 yuan (US$21,960) for operating a business illegally. Public security officials have reportedly pressured Shi's family to refrain from appealing his sentence. Shi is diabetic, and CAA reported that Shi has had bouts of poor health while in detention. Authorities have denied his lawyers' requests for medical parole.

Prison? (Xinduqiao)	10	Sichuan Province	Based on a July 2010 Dui Hua translation of an October 18, 2008, Ganzi Daily report, on March 28, 2008, public security officials in Seda (Serthar) county, Ganzi TAP, Sichuan province, detained monk Gyurme Trinle (Dui Hua: Gyurmey Trinley) for shouting slogans calling for Tibetan independence in a public square. On October 28, 2008, the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court, located in Kangding, the capital of Ganzi TAP, sentenced Gyurme Trinle to 10 years' imprisonment for "inciting splittism" (Criminal Law, Article 103(2)). According to Ganzi Daily, Gyurme Trinle's act caused some persons "to create a disturbance" that resulted in property damage and injuries to security personnel. He was not charged in connection with property damage or injury. No information is available about his place of imprisonment. According to an August 2008 ICT report, on March 18, 2008, security forces in Serthar county fired on and "possibly" wounded Tibetan protesters.

Region	According to the Lhasa Evening News (LEN), a Communist Party-run newspaper, on October 27, 2008, the Lhasa People's Intermediate Court sentenced Wangdu, Migmar Dondrub, Phuntsog Dorje, and Tsewang Dorje, to imprisonment for their alleged roles in "an underground intelligence network." Migmar Dondrub distributed CD-ROMs and leaflets prepared by Wangdu that incited "splitting the nation" and a "Tibetan people's uprising." The court "verified" that the "the Dalai Clique" told Wangdu to establish the group, the report said. Prior to and after the March 14 Lhasa protests and rioting, the men allegedly "collected intelligence touching upon the security and interests of the state," which Wangdu sent to "the Dalai clique." The court convicted Wangdu and Migmar Dondrub of "espionage" (Criminal Law, Art. 110) and Phuntsog Dorje and Tsewang Dorje of "illegally sending intelligence abroad" (Art. 111). Details about their place of imprisonment are unavailable. Migmar Dondrub's sentence is 14 years.

Region	According to TCHRD reports, PSB officials detained HIV/AIDS activist Wangdu on March 14, 2008, the day protests and rioting erupted in Lhasa. The Lhasa Evening News reported on November 8 that on October 27 the Lhasa Intermediate People's Court sentenced Wangdu to life imprisonment for "espionage," claiming that he established a group that included Migmar Dondrub, Phuntsog Dorje, and Tsewang Dorje to distribute material to incite a "Tibetan people's uprising" and to collect "intelligence" that touched on "the security and interests of the nation." According to official Chinese information, Wangdu is imprisoned in TAR Prison (Drapchi). According to TIN database information, Wangdu served 8 years in prison after detention on March 8, 1989, the day martial law took effect in Lhasa after 3 days of protest and rioting. His 3-year sentence to RTL was extended to 8 years' imprisonment after he and 10 other political prisoners signed a petition stating that the 1951 17 Point Agreement was forced on an independent Tibet. Prior to the 1989 detention Wangdu was a Jokhang Temple monk.

Reports did not state where he was detained. On March 15 or 16, officials detained Dasher's father, Adrel (or Adri) Rinpoche, the spiritual head of Dza Bonpo Monastery (located in Shiqu county, Ganzi TAP, Sichuan province) from the monastery. According to a May 2009 TGiE report, officials held the men responsible for the participation of at least 8 Dza Bonpo monks studying temporarily at Sera Monastery in a March 10 peaceful protest near Lhasa's Barkor Temple. In February 2010, almost 2 years after detention, the Lhasa Intermediate People's Court sentenced Adrel to 5 years in prison on an unknown charge and Dasher to 10 years for "separatism" and sending "reports and photos of the March 2008 protests" outside of China. Shijiazhuang native Chen, age 43, claims that local police have protected the person responsible for the 2004 death of his father. Chen has petitioned in Beijing several times and has subsequently been detained for brief periods several times. Official documents obtained by Boxun provide evidence that the Shijiazhuang RTL Management Committee sentenced Chen to 18 months' reeducation through labor (RTL) for "disturbing social order." Chen's appeal at a March 25 hearing was rejected, and his family was informed of the sentence on June 4, 2008. He is serving his sentence at the Shijiazhuang RTL Camp.

According to AP/AFP reports and U.S.-based Falun Gong organizations, public security officials in Beijing detained artist Xu Na and her husband, folk musician Yu Zhou, on the night of January 26, 2008, at a checkpoint set up to increase security before the Olympics. Yu died 11 days later in police custody. The Beijing Chongwen District People's Court sentenced Xu to 3 years in prison on November 25, 2008, for "using a cult organization to undermine the implementation of the law" (Criminal Law, Article 300), based on the court's determination that she had possessed and intended to distribute documents and computer disks containing Falun Gong materials. Xu served a 5-year sentence from 2001 to 2006 for providing accommodation to practitioners from other provinces who visited Beijing. While serving her first sentence, Xu was reportedly beaten, deprived of sleep, force-fed, and tied down in uncomfortable positions. Xu is likely being held at the Beijing Women's Prison as she was in 2001.

Authorities later charged him with inciting separatism and leaking state secrets. Alimjan Yimit had worked as a manager in a foreign-owned company shut down for "engaging in illegal religious infiltration activities." In September 2007, authorities ordered him to stop "illegal religious infiltration activities." On May 27, 2008, the Kashgar Intermediate People's Court returned the case to the procuratorate due to "insufficient evidence." The procuratorate resubmitted the case in October 2008. According to CDN (29 April 2010), on October 27, 2009 the Kashgar Intermediate People's Court convicted Alimjan Yimit of "leaking state secrets" to foreign organizations, sentencing him to 15 years in prison. On March 16, 2010, the XUAR High People's Court upheld his conviction. Alimjan Yimit is held at the Xinjiang No. 3 Prison in Urumqi.

The detention may have been linked to Kunkhyen's possession of a camera at an incident at a horse-racing festival on August 1, when Ronggyal Adrag climbed onto a stage where officials would speak and, according to RFA, ICT, and TCHRD reports, shouted slogans calling for the Dalai Lama's return to Tibet, freedom of religion, the release of Gedun Choekyi Nyima (the Panchen Lama identified by the Dalai Lama), Tenzin Deleg (a Buddhist teacher from the same area imprisoned in 2002 on charges of splittism and involvement in bombings), and Tibetan independence. Xinhua reported that the Ganzi Intermediate People's Court sentenced Kunkhyen and Ronggyal Adrag's nephew Adrag Lopoe on November 20 to 9 years and 10 years imprisonment respectively on charges of espionage and inciting splittism.

Based on the RFA report, it is not clear whether police detained Nyi'oe in connection with Tongkyab monks who did not cooperate during sessions of "patriotic education" at the monastery, or in connection with public disturbances that erupted between Tibetans and Hui Muslims earlier in August. By August 17, security officials transferred Nyi'oe to the prefectural detention center located in Maqin (Machen), the Guoluo prefectural capital. RFA sources said that police sources confirmed Nyi'oe's detention but did not provide any information. Another Tongkyab monk, Taglo (or Taklo) was detained along with Nyi'oe, questioned, and released.

That same day, his wife, He Fang, received a one year, three months suspended sentence and was released. Sun, a journalist for the overseas Web site Boxun, was detained on May 30, 2007. He had reported on forced evictions and police harassment. In March 2007, officials accused him of "illegal" reporting and seized his journalist license. After his case was sent to the procuratorate in July 2007, the procuratorate returned the case to police twice due to insufficient evidence. His trial was on May 30, 2008, and the Nanjing Intermediate People's Court rejected Sun's appeal on August 26. Sun claimed the firearms charge relied on false statements and that the disturbance charge related to a 2004 incident in which he was helping evictees and did nothing illegal.

The Network of Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CRD) reports that Yuan and her husband were targeted by authorities after assisting in a lawsuit that challenged government abuses in Linyi. Their first report documented the extensive use of violence by local officials in implementing population planning policies, and was published in June 2005. According to CRD and Radio Free Asia, local police took her in for questioning and issued an order authorizing her house arrest on November 28, 2006, one day after her husband's retrial for "intentional destruction of property" and "gathering people to disturb traffic order." The order accuses Yuan of the same two crimes. Authorities lifted the order on May 27, 2007, but reportedly continue to monitor her movement and interactions.

Chen, a villager of Dongzhou, had his land requisitioned by a village committee, but received no compensation in exchange. Officials from the Honghaiwan Public Security Bureau took him into custody on November 9, 2006, as he was hanging an anti-corruption banner in public. Xinhua said that he had been held for assaulting a village committee official. Chen's detention sparked a clash between villagers and police on November 10, and resulted in the hostage-taking of eight officials. Authorities refused to negotiate, instead announcing on November 16 that they had sentenced Chen to prison. The government's charge, length of Chen's sentence, and prison location are unknown.

State-controlled media reported that Guo had printed a publication in 2001 without the necessary government license. Other sources reported that the publication exposed a political scandal and that Guo had already paid a fine for the infraction. Guo's trial began on July 9. Guo was detained on September 14, 2006, and arrested on September 30. Guo was active in rights defense and was detained for several months in 2005 after he advised villagers on the recall campaign of an allegedly corrupt official. Guo is serving his sentence at the Meizhou Prison in Guangdong. While in prison, Guo was reportedly beaten by a prisoner and lost considerable weight after a hunger strike.

Gao Zhisheng, founder of the Beijing Shengzhi Law Firm, has represented numerous activists and religious groups. On October 18, 2005, Gao wrote an open letter to exposing widespread torture against Falun Gong practitioners. On November 4, officials closed his law firm and began a campaign of harassment against Gao, his family, and associates. Authorities abducted Gao on August 15, 2006, and formally arrested him on September 21. He was convicted on December 22 of "inciting subversion of state power" and subjected to a three-year sentence, suspended for five years. After Gao sent an open letter to the U.S. Congress in September 2007, he was taken away by public security, and then held and tortured for over 50 days. Gao disappeared on February 4, 2009, into official custody. On March 28, 2010, Gao contacted his family, associates, and news outlets for the first time since his disappearance. In late March and early April 2010, Gao gave several interviews, during which he reportedly appeared to be under surveillance. In late April 2010, Gao again appeared to have disappeared after visiting family in western China. His exact circumstances remain unclear.

Region	Amnesty International (AI) reports that in early April 2005, authorities arrested Abdulla Jamal, an ethnic Uyghur middle school teacher in Kashgar, Xinjiang, for writing a manuscript that authorities claimed incited separatism. According to Radio Free Asia (RFA), the manuscript was a novel titled "Tragedies at the Oil Well." RFA reports that Abdulla Jamal initially had been detained in March 2005, along with three teachers and 17 or 18 students, ostensibly for involvement in a fight between ethnic Uyghur and Han Chinese students. According to AI, his detention took place after he submitted his manuscript for publication. Further details about the case, including Abdulla Jamal's current whereabouts, are not known.

He studied English and Hindi in India in 2003-04. Drolma Kyab reportedly was writing a commentary in Chinese language, "Restless Himalaya," that addressed topics including Tibetan sovereignty, democracy, religion, and the Tibetan experience under communism. He was working on a second commentary that addressed topics such as the location of Chinese military bases in Tibetan areas. The Lhasa Intermediate People's Court sentenced him on September 16 (according to TCHRD) to 10 years and 6 months in prison on charges of espionage and illegally crossing the border (according to Dui Hua Dialogue). The TAR High People's Court rejected his appeal on November 30. After brief hospitalization for tuberculosis that he contracted while imprisoned, authorities transferred him to Qushui Prison, near Lhasa.

Muhammed Tohti Metrozi had fled to Pakistan after being held in detention in the XUAR for two months, in apparent connection to reported pro-independence activities, and the UNHCR in Pakistan recognized him as a refugee. A court in Xinjiang reportedly sentenced Muhammed Tohti Metrozi around April 10, 2004, to life in prison for separatism, a crime under Article 103 of China's Criminal Law, in reported connection to his applying for refugee status, housing Uyghurs in Pakistan who had fled China, and allegedly belonging to a "separatist" organization. Muhammed Tohti Metrozi reportedly rejected the charges in court. The Xinjiang High People's Court rejected Muhammed Tohti Metrozi's appeal on February 15, 2005. He is held in the Xinjiang No. 1 Prison in Urumqi.

The Ganzi Intermediate People's Court alleged that Tenzin Deleg's case involved "state secrets" and conducted the trial in a closed court on November 29, 2002 (Xinhua, 26 January 03). The court sentenced him on December 2 to death with a 2-year reprieve for conspiring to cause explosions and 14 years in prison for inciting "splittism." The Sichuan High People's Court rejected his appeal on January 26, 2003, then commuted the sentence to life imprisonment on January 26, 2005 (Xinhua, 26 January 05). The CECC (February 2004) published reports on the case. Tenzin Deleg reportedly did not confess to the charges, declared his innocence during sentencing, and continues to deny the charges (RFA, 11 June 10). Prison officials told relatives visiting him in April 2010 that he is "suffering from ailments related to bones, heart, and blood pressure," RFA reported. Another Tibetan, Lobsang Dondrub, was sentenced to death on the same charges at the same trial and executed on January 26, 2003.

Officials arrested Gong in August 2001 and charged him with using a cult to undermine the implementation of law, premeditated assault, and rape. Officials later dropped the cult charges, but convicted him of the other charges. In December 2001, a court sentenced him to death. On appeal, his sentence was commuted to life in prison. According to the China Aid Association, Xiao Biguang, who organized the legal defense for Gong, reported that prison officials had beaten Gong nearly to death. Gong was imprisoned at Hubei No. 3 Prison in Jingzhou city, Hubei province, until May 2003, and then transferred to Hongshan Prison, Miaoshan Development Zone, Jiangxia district, Wuhan city, Hubei. In March 2006, prison officials praised a fellow prisoner who had severely beaten Gong. Gong's family has petitioned for medical parole.

M		chg/tri/sent	2000/06/24	Dongguan Prison	12	Guangdong Province	According to Human Rights in China and the Committee to Protect Journalists, in December 2001, the Shenzhen Intermediate People's Court sentenced Xu Zerong to 13 years in prison for revealing state secrets and illegally operating a business, crimes under Articles 111 and 225, respectively, of the Criminal Law. The court imposed 10 years for copying and sending historical material about the Korean War to researchers outside China. It imposed an additional 3 years for selling 60,000 books and periodicals that lacked government-issued book numbers. There is speculation that Xu's punishment may be related to an article he published criticizing China's alleged support of communist insurgents in Malaysia. Xu was detained in June 2000 and formally arrested in July 2000. The Guangdong Provincial High People's Court affirmed the lower court ruling in December 2002. Officials have granted Xu a nine-month sentence reduction and he is due for release on September 23, 2012, according to Dui Hua.

The bishop (unregistered) of Baoding, Hebei, Su escaped the following month, went into hiding, and wrote an open protest letter to the National People's Congress. He was captured on October 8, 1997. Though Su has been the object of frequent American and international inquiry, the Chinese government has provided no information about him, and indeed claims that it has not taken any "coercive measures" against him. On November 15, 2003, the then 71-year-old Su was sighted at a hospital in Baoding, where, under heavy guard, he was undergoing an eye operation and treatment for a heart ailment. Since then he has disappeared again. His case has been connected with that of An Shuxin, his auxiliary bishop.

Officials formally arrested Dawa Tsering on October 12, and indicted him on March 18, 1998 on the charge of splittism (but not on a charge of causing an explosion). He confessed to putting up the posters and setting off the explosion, which did not cause serious damage. The Lhasa Intermediate People's Court sentenced him to 15 years' imprisonment for splittism on September 4, 1998. According to a TCHRD report, Chamdo native Dawa Tsering left his job and joined others in Lhasa to spread information about Tibetan history and independence. He claimed full responsibility before the court in order to lessen punishment for another detainee. He is believed to be serving his sentence in Qushui Prison.

Based on information from official Chinese sources in the Dui Hua Official Registry and from unofficial reports, Chinese security officials detained Chen Yong, a worker and resident of Tangshan city in Hebei province, in June 1989. Chen allegedly attacked a security official during the 1989 pro-democracy demonstrations. Authorities charged Chen with "counterrevolutionary assault," a crime eliminated by the 1997 revision to the Criminal Law. The Beijing Intermediate People's Court sentenced Chen on December 8, 1989, to life imprisonment, which was subsequently reduced to a fixed-term sentence of unknown length on appeal. On June 1, 2009, Human Rights in China reported that, as of May 2009, Chen was imprisoned in Qincheng Prison in Beijing. Available information about the prisoner's alleged activity is inadequate to determine the level of violence, if any, involved. Charges of "counterrevolutionary" crime always entail a political component that can hinder objective assessment.

In January 1989, he was sentenced to death with a 2-year reprieve for pre-meditated murder. In January 1991, his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and in April 1993 to a fixed term of 20 years. In March 1991, he and another prisoner attempted to hand a letter on human rights to U.S. Ambassador James Lilley when he visited Drapchi Prison. Both prisoners were beaten, put into isolation cells, and then transferred to Pome Prison, where Lobsang Tenzin's health was very poor. According to a co-defendant who fled to India after his release from prison, the men were repeatedly beaten and tortured. Lobsang Tenzin was moved to Qushui Prison, near Lhasa, in July 2005. His sentence will end on April 26, 2013. This record includes data from Dui Hua and Tibet Information Network.
