CECC UPDATE: TIBETAN SELF-IMMOLATIONS

May 13, 2016

Tibetan Self-Immolations Reported or Believed To Focus on Political and Religious Issues Summary, Source, and Location Information as of March 23, 2016

The following summary, map, and list provide Tibetan self-immolation information current as of March 23, 2016. The profile of self-immolators has changed from an initial majority who were current or former monastics located in Sichuan province, to a narrower majority who were laypersons and evenly divided between inside and outside of Sichuan province.

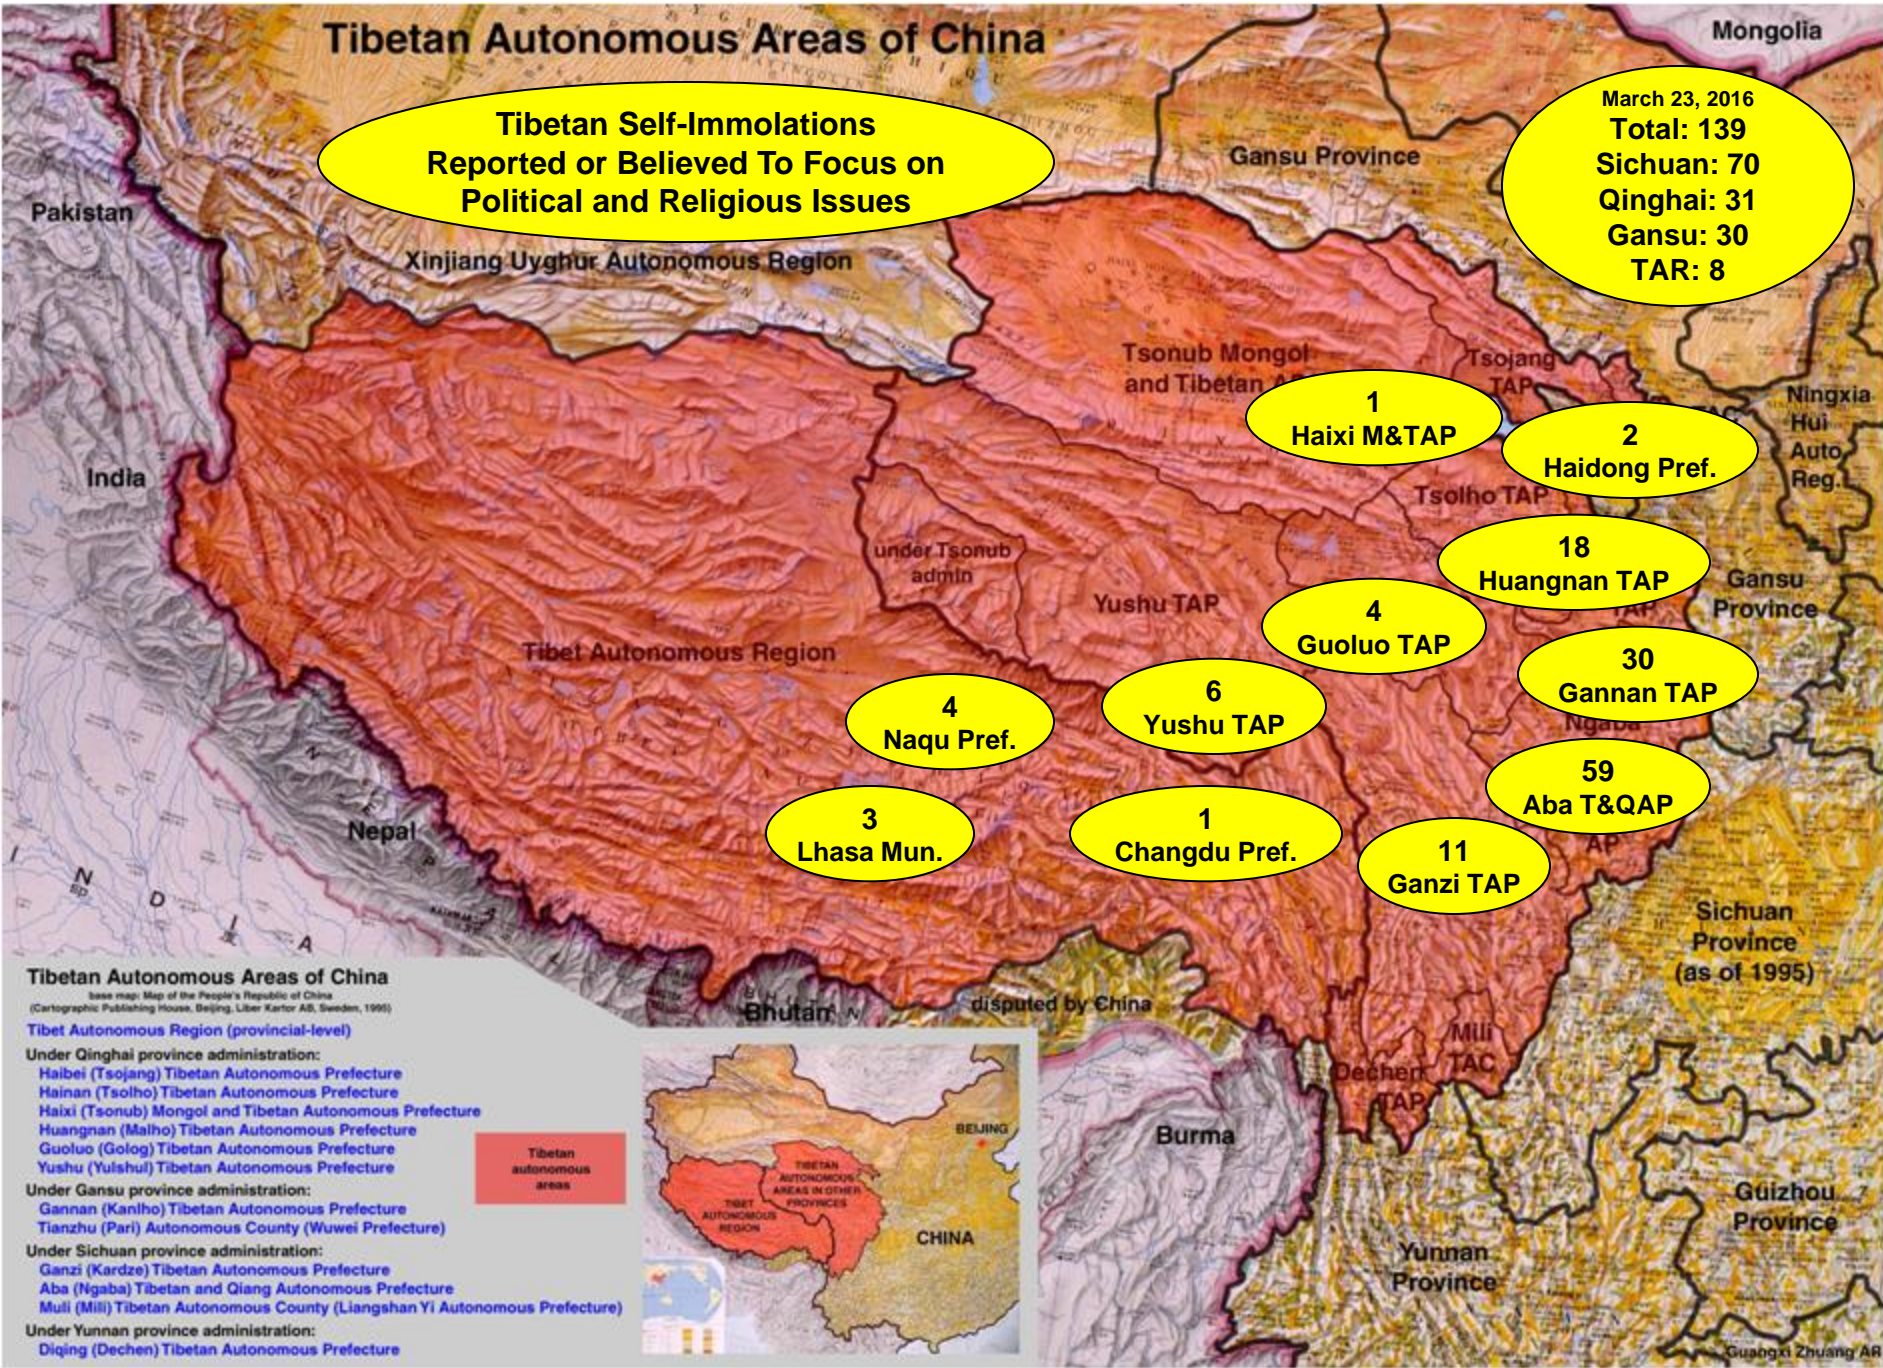

- As of March 23, 2016, the total number of Tibetan self-immolations reported to focus on political and religious issues reached 139—123 of them reportedly were fatal. (The total does not include Qinghai province property protests by females Dekyi Choezom and Pasang Lhamo on June 27 and September 13, 2012, respectively, and Konchog Tsomo in March 2013; by female Tashi Kyi in Gansu province on August 28, 2015; and the April 6, 2012, deaths of a Tibetan Buddhist abbot, Athub, and a nun, Atse, in a Sichuan house fire initially reported as accidental and later as self-immolation. The Commission continues to monitor reports on their deaths.)
- 76 of the 139 self-immolators reportedly were lay persons; 63 were current or former monks or nuns.
- 69 of the 139 self-immolations reportedly took place in Qinghai and Gansu provinces and the Tibet Autonomous Region; 70 took place in Sichuan province.
- 117 of the 139 self-immolators were male; 56 were current or former monks; 61 were laypersons.
- 22 of the 139 self-immolators were female; 7 were current or former nuns; 15 were laypersons.

Source information in the following list is indicative, not complete. The list utilizes brevity as well as color-coding to facilitate easy navigation and recognition of different information types.
