STATUS OF WOMEN

Public Participation

POLITICAL DECISIONMAKING

The Chinese government is obligated under its international commitments and domestic laws to ensure gender-equal political participation; women, however, continued to be underrepresented in political decisionmaking positions. Female representation in top-level Communist Party and government leadership remains low or non-existent, and one scholar noted that it would likely remain negligible after the leadership change at the 19th National Congress of the Chinese Communist Party scheduled for autumn 2017.

Overall, representation at upper and lower levels of the government continues to fall short of the 30 percent target recommended by the UN Commission on the Status of Women. The proportion of female delegates at the 12th National People’s Congress (NPC), seated in 2013, was 23.4 percent. A draft decision presented during the annual session of the 12th NPC in March 2017 projected that a greater proportion of female delegates would be elected to the 13th NPC in January 2018, but did not specify how.

CIVIL SOCIETY AND ADVOCACY

During the Commission’s 2017 reporting year, Chinese officials prevented some women’s rights advocates from engaging in activism and providing services—a continuation of the intensifying restrictions on women’s rights advocacy that began in 2015—while promoting Party-affiliated alternatives for protecting women’s rights and interests.

A leading feminist activist described the political environment as “very difficult” and reported that independent groups were unable to organize activities on behalf of women’s rights. Activists also voiced serious concern about online censorship after a social media company blocked a prominent social media account for women’s rights, “Feminist Voices,” for 30 days in February 2017. The account shutdown was allegedly directed by the Cyberspace Administration of China, the government agency responsible for overseeing all online content. [For more information on censorship, see Section II—Freedom of Expression.]
May 2017 “Human Billboard” Anti-Sexual Harassment Campaign

On May 1, 2017, women’s rights advocate Zhang Leilei initiated an anti-sexual harassment campaign with the feminist group Women Awakening Network based in Guangzhou municipality, Guangdong province. Zhang recruited 100 volunteers from across China via social media as “human billboards” who would publicly carry posters to raise awareness about preventing sexual harassment on public transportation. Volunteers from at least 23 cities participated and around 10 feminist or LGBT groups held activities in conjunction with the campaign. Zhang started the campaign after authorities repeatedly refused permission for a crowd-funded advertisement against sexual harassment in a Guangzhou subway station. On May 17, 2017, authorities ordered Zhang to halt the billboard campaign because it was “too large,” comparing it to the planned anti-sexual harassment activity in March 2015 that led to the criminal detention of five women’s rights advocates (also known as the Feminist Five). They also told Zhang to suspend all other activities and leave the city for the remainder of the year due to heightened public security in anticipation of the 2017 Fortune Global Forum to be held in Guangzhou in December. Guangzhou authorities also searched the home of three others involved in the campaign. Zhang subsequently suspended the campaign and canceled a series of planned follow-up activities.

In September 2016, the Party’s Central Committee General Office launched a nationwide initiative to reform the Party-affiliated All-China Women’s Federation (ACWF). The reforms direct the ACWF to more actively intervene in individual cases to protect women against violations of their rights and interests, to improve aid delivery, and to enhance the ACWF’s online presence. The initiative also charged the ACWF with “leading women to listen to the Party [and] follow the path of the Party” and “strengthening the leadership of the Party.”

The Chinese government also continued to target individual women’s rights advocates with criminal prosecution and other forms of harassment and intimidation.

- The Foshan Intermediate People’s Court in Guangdong province convicted Su Changlan, an influential organizer and advocate for women’s rights and democratic village elections, of “inciting subversion of state power” on March 31, 2017. The court sentenced Su to three years in prison and a subsequent three-year deprivation of political rights. Su is expected to be released in October 2017. Authorities repeatedly violated her legal and procedural rights by holding her in secret detention, denying her legal counsel, repeatedly extending her detention before her trial in April 2016, and deferring a judgment four times. In June 2017, her brother reported that her life was “definitely in danger” because of inadequate medical treatment, and Amnesty International said in August 2017 that her health suffered “a sharp deterioration due to ill-treatment and poor detention conditions over the past years.” The UN Working Group on Arbitrary Detention in 2015 determined... that the Chinese government had arbitrarily detained Su and called on the government to release her immediately and grant reparation for harm suffered during her detention.\(^{32}\) Public security officials detained Su in October 2014 after she voiced support for the pro-democracy demonstrations in Hong Kong.\(^{33}\)

- Also on March 31, 2017, the same Foshan court sentenced Chen Qitang,\(^{34}\) to four years and six months’ imprisonment and three years’ deprivation of political rights for “inciting subversion of state power.”\(^{35}\) Chen had worked with Su to document domestic violence in Guangdong and actively published essays critical of government policies.\(^{36}\) Authorities prolonged his detention for more than two years.\(^{37}\)

- The Gangzha District People’s Court in Nantong municipality, Jiangsu province, convicted Shan Lihua,\(^{38}\) a women’s rights advocate, of “picking quarrels and provoking trouble” in September 2016.\(^{39}\) During her detention, authorities reportedly subjected Shan to torture and other rights violations; her brother stated that officials at the Nantong PSB Detention Center beat her “until she couldn’t stand,”\(^{40}\) and that authorities refused her access to counsel.\(^{41}\) The judgment sentencing Shan referenced her protesting the sexual abuse of students by school officials in Hainan province in 2013 and the detention of women’s rights advocate Ye Haiyan.\(^{42}\)

- Local authorities in Beijing municipality repeatedly pressured Ye Haiyan, a prominent advocate for women, commercial sex workers, and people living with AIDS, to move residences between January and March 2017.\(^{43}\) (For more information on restrictions on residence and movement prior to the annual meetings of the National People’s Congress and Chinese People’s Political Consultative Conference, see Section II—Freedom of Residence and Movement.) Ye reportedly remained under constant surveillance by authorities, and was unable to participate in public demonstrations or leave the country after Chinese authorities told her that her passport was “lost” after she attempted to apply for a visa in 2014.\(^{44}\) A U.S.-based filmmaker making a documentary about Ye’s activism reported that officials threatened the filmmaker’s family in China in order to discourage her from releasing the film.\(^{45}\)

Gender-Based Discrimination

EMPLOYMENT

Women in China continued to face a variety of institutional, legal, and social barriers to equal employment, which the Chinese government is obligated to address under its international commitments\(^{46}\) and domestic laws.\(^{47}\) Employers frequently discriminate against women in recruiting,\(^{48}\) hiring,\(^{49}\) and promotion.\(^{50}\) Although existing laws prohibit such practices,\(^{51}\) the system for enforcement remains inadequate: Repercussions for violating the law are rare\(^{52}\) and negligible,\(^{53}\) and victims of discrimination at work are reluctant to seek a legal remedy due to the risk of dismissal and time involved.\(^{54}\) Discriminatory legal policies also continued to bar women from performing certain jobs—in some cases based on whether they are menstruating, pregnant, or breastfeeding.\(^{55}\) Disparities in the workplace also manifested in widespread sexual harassment and women earning on average 65 percent of what men earn. Although the Commission did not observe statistics on the pay gap for rural women this past year, in 2011 women's income was 56 percent that of men's in rural areas, despite the fact that women reportedly make up a majority of the rural labor force, according to a February 2015 news report.
Status of Women

Experts and female respondents to a recent survey attributed much of the discrimination against women in employment to employers' desire to avoid the cost of maternity leave for female employees. An All-China Women's Federation survey found that 54.7 percent of employers asked women about their marital status and reproduction-related issues during the interview process, and many women reported that employer concerns about maternity had resulted in reduced salary and impeded career development and advancement. In another survey, the greatest proportion of women reporting gender discrimination were those between 25 and 34, particularly those without children. Experts said that such discrimination would likely be exacerbated by the "universal two-child policy" implemented in January 2016.

Some women continued to demand more active enforcement of existing Chinese law through gender discrimination lawsuits, the first of which was reportedly settled out of court in 2013. In September 2016, Gao Xiao (pseudonym) obtained a judgment from the Guangzhou Intermediate People's Court in Guangdong province for 2,000 yuan (US$300) and a public apology from a restaurant chain that refused to interview or hire her for a chef's apprentice position based on her gender. In March 2017, following the company's inaction, the court again ordered the restaurant to publicly apologize. In another case in July 2017, a university student filed the first gender-based employment discrimination suit in Shenzhen municipality, Guangdong, against the Shenzhen Municipal Human Resources and Social Security Bureau for failing to address her complaint regarding a discriminatory job recruitment advertisement posted online by a local business.

Some Chinese government officials promoted the use of law to resolve gender discrimination issues in employment. The Supreme People's Court (SPC) included a recent gender discrimination case among the guiding cases released in August 2016, making it a judgment that courts "at all levels should refer to . . . when adjudicating similar cases." The judgment granted compensation to a female plaintiff who sued a courier service that refused to hire her because of her gender. SPC official Guo Feng said that imposing civil liability would deter employers from discriminating on the basis of gender. In March 2017, several National People's Congress (NPC) delegates spoke out in support of creating an anti-discrimination law for employment to address widespread discrimination.

PROPERTY RIGHTS

Women, particularly after marriage, continued to lack secure rights to property in both rural and urban areas due to a combina-
Status of Women

One NPC Standing Committee member noted that rural women continue to face challenges in asserting rights to land due to a lack of decision-making power at both the household and village level. According to a 2016 interview with a Chinese professor, 18 percent of married rural women did not have their names included on the land contracts of the household of either their husband or parents, and nearly 53 percent of married women had had land contracts canceled by their home villages as of 2014. Urban women also face difficulties defending their property rights; for example, in fall 2016, a court ruled against a woman who, after her husband proposed divorce, sued to have her name added to the title of a home she had contributed to purchasing. A 2011 Supreme People’s Court interpretation of the PRC Marriage Law grants property in a divorce to the party named on the deed. Research from 2012 indicated that a majority of married women or their families contribute to the purchase of homes, but most women are not named on the deed of the home.

Violence Against Women

Women in China continued to face challenges with domestic and sexual violence as officials continued to develop a legal and institutional infrastructure to prevent such abuse. All-China Women’s Federation statistics show that “30 percent of married women have experienced some form of domestic violence.” At the end of June 2017, courts reportedly had issued 1,284 total protection orders under the PRC Anti-Domestic Violence Law, in effect since March 2016. Experts on the domestic violence law note that challenges to implementation include lack of awareness, inadequate resources for training of officials, gender discrimination within the legal system, and enforcement that prioritizes family cohesion and “social stability” over the safety of victims. Victims of sexual violence also face challenges in obtaining legal redress—experts note that victims of sexual harassment are reluctant to come forward due to pressure from family and society. A 2013 UN study found that nearly one in five Chinese women reported being the victims of rape, and a 2015 survey of Chinese college students found that 34.8 percent of female respondents (and 35.6 percent of male respondents) had experienced sexual harassment or violence. The non-governmental organization China Labour Bulletin noted that while sexual harassment is “widespread,” it is rare for women to obtain justice through the legal system.
Notes to Section II—Status of Women

1 Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW), adopted by UN General Assembly resolution 34/180 of 18 December 79, entry into force 3 September 82. Under Article 7(b) of CEDAW, China, as a State Party, is obligated to "ensure to women, on equal terms with men," the right "(b) participate in the formulation of government policy and the implementation thereof and to hold public office and perform all public functions at all levels of government . . . ." United Nations Treaty Collection, Chapter IV, Human Rights, Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, last visited 13 July 17. China signed the convention on July 17, 1980, and ratified it on November 18, 1982. The Convention commits to undertake the legal rights and obligations contained in these articles.

2 PRC Law on the Protection of Women's Rights and Interests [Zhonghua renmin gongheguo funu quanyi baozhang fa], passed 3 April 92, effective 1 December 92, art. 11; PRC Electoral Law of the National People's Congress and Local People's Congresses [Zhonghua renmin gongheguo quanguo renmin daibiao dahui fa], passed 2 December 88, amended 10 December 92, 2 December 96, 1 February 95, 27 October 04, 14 March 10, 29 August 15, art. 6. Both of these laws stipulate that an "appropriate number" of female deputies should serve at all levels of people's congresses.

3 "China Political Leaders" [Zhongguo zhengyao], Chinese Communist Party News, People's Daily, last visited 17 July 17; "Chinese Communist Party 18th Central Leadership Organization Members' Biographies" [Zhonggong shuoming], National People's Congress of the People's Republic of China, the Chinese Communist Party, 15 November 17. Within Party leadership, only 2 of the 25 members of the Political Bureau of the Communist Party Central Committee (Politburo) are women, and there are no women among the 7 members of the Politburo Standing Committee—the most powerful governing body in China. There are no women serving as Party secretaries at the provincial level. In government leadership, women hold 2 out of 25 national-level ministerial positions and 2 out of 31 governorships of provinces, provincial-level municipalities, and autonomous regions. For more information on the political system, see CECC, 2015 Annual Report, 8 October 15, Notes to Section II—Status of Women, 176, endnote 5.

7 Wang Chen, "Explanation of the 'Draft' Decision of the 5th Meeting of the 12th National People's Congress on Member Quotas and Election Issues for the 13th National People's Congress," Guanyu "di shi'er jie quanguo renmin daibiao dahui di wuci huiyi guanyu di shisan jie quanguo renmin daibiao dahui xuanju fa" [Guanyu "di shi'er jie quanguo renmin daibiao dahui di wuci huiyi guanyu di shisan jie quanguo renmin daibiao dahui xuanju fa"], passed 1 July 79, amended 10 December 82, 3 December 86, 3 February 85, 27 October 04, 14 March 10, 29 August 15, art. 6. Both of these laws stipulate that an "appropriate number" of female deputies should serve at all levels of people's congresses.

14 Sarah O'Meara, "How To Be More Than a Token Woman in Chinese Politics," Sixth Tone, 26 December 16.

Status of Women

7

Harassment” [Xingdong! zhege nühai jiang chengwei zhongguo shouge fan xing saorao roushen guanggao pai], Weibo post, 1 May 17, 2:27 p.m.

11 Zou Yun, “Feminist Activist Ignores Police Advice To Leave City,” Sixth Tone, 22 May 17; Tony Lin, “End of the Line for Subway Ad Against Sexual Harassment,” Sixth Tone, 28 April 17.

13 Zou Yun, “Feminist Activist Ignores Police Advice To Leave City,” Sixth Tone, 22 May 17; Guangzhou’s Pro-Democracy Occupy Protests,” Hong Kong Free Press, 31 March 17; Foshan Intermediate People’s Court, Guangdong Province, Criminal Court Judgment [Guangdong sheng foshan shi zhongji renmin fayuan, xingshi panjue shu], (2015) Fo Zhong Fa Xing Yi Chu Zi No. 131, 30 March 17, reprinted in Independent Chinese PEN Center, 31 March 17.

14 Ibid.

15 For more information on Su Changlan, see the Commission’s Political Prisoner Database record 2014-00406.

17 Ibid.

23 Ibid.

24 For more information on Chen Qiang, see the Commission’s Political Prisoner Database record 2009-00092.

27 “Su Changlan and Chen Qiang Heavily Sentenced for Supporting Occupy Movement” [Su changlan, chen qiang zhichi zhanli yundong bei zhonggan], Radio Free Asia, 31 March 17.

28 For more information on Shan Lihua, see the Commission’s Political Prisoner Database record 2016-00333.

29 “Picking Quarrels and Provoking Trouble’ Again, Jiangsu Rights Defender Shan Lihua Sentenced to 2 Years and 3 Months” [You shi “xunxin zishi” jiangsu weiquan renshe shan lihua panxing 2 nian 3 ge ye], Radio Free Asia, 29 September 16.

31 “Picking Quarrels and Provoking Trouble’ Again, Jiangsu Rights Defender Shan Lihua Sentenced to 2 Years and 3 Months” [You shi “xunxin zishi” jiangsu weiquan renshe shan lihua panxing 2 nian 3 ge ye], Radio Free Asia, 29 September 16.

34 For more information on Su Changlan, see the Commission’s Political Prisoner Database record 2014-00406.

36 Ibid.

37 Ibid.

38 Ibid.

39 Ibid.

41 Ibid.
Status of Women

42 Gangzhua District People's Court, Nantong Municipality, Jiangsu Province, Criminal Judgment [Jiangsu sheng nantong shi gangzhua qu renmin fayuan xingshi panju ce shui], (2016) Su No 611 Xing Chu No. 50, 29 September 16, reprinted in Rights Defense Network, 29 September 16.

43 Striking Hard Before the Two Sessions, Ye Haiyan Forced To Relocate Again [Lianghui quan yanda: ye haiyan bei haiyan bianjuan], Deutsche Welle, 6 March 17; Civil Rights & Livelihood Watch, "Women's Rights Defender Ye Haiyan Ordered by Beijing's Songzhuang Government To Move" [Nu quan hanwei zhe ye haiyan bei bei jingzi songzhuang zhengfu xialing bai banjuan], 18 January 17.

45 Joanna Chiu, "Documentary 'Hooligan Sparrow' Shows How Dangerous It Is To Protest Against Rape in China," Quartz, 24 October 16.

47 PRC Constitution, issued 4 December 82, amended 12 April 88, 29 March 93, 15 March 99, 14 March 04; PRC Labor Law [Zhonghua renmin gongheguo laodong fa], passed 8 July 94, effective 1 January 95, art. 13; PRC Law on the Protection of Women’s Rights and Interests [Zhonghua renmin gongheguo funu quanyi fa], passed 3 April 92, amended 28 August 95, effective 1 December 95, art. 2.

51 PRC Labor Law [Zhonghua renmin gongheguo laodong fa], passed 5 July 94, effective 1 January 95, arts. 12–13. Gender-based discrimination against employees or applicants for employment is prohibited under Articles 12 and 13 of the PRC Labor Law. See also Ministry of Human Resources and Social Security, Provisions on Employment Services and Employment Management [Juuye fuwu yu jiuye guanli guiding], issued 5 November 07, amended 23 December 14, effective 1 February 15, arts. 20, 58(2); PRC Constitution, issued 4 December 82, amended 12 April 88, 29 March 93, 15 March 99, 14 March 04, art. 48.

54 Hatty Liu, "Getting Rights Wrong," World of Chinese, 13 October 16.

55 PRC Labor Law [Zhonghua renmin gongheguo laodong fa], passed 5 July 94, effective 1 January 95, arts. 12–13; State Council, Special Provisions for the Protection of Female Employees’ Labor [Nu zhigong laodong basu tebie guiding], issued and effective 28 April 12, Appendix, para. 1 (labor restrictions for all women), para. 2 (labor restrictions during menstruation), para. 3 (labor restrictions for pregnant women), para. 4 (labor restrictions while breastfeeding), issued 19 January 95, effective 1 January 96.

60 Wang Hua, "Striking Hard Before the Two Sessions, Ye Haiyan Forced To Relocate Again" [Lianghui quan yanda: ye haiyan bei haiyan bianjuan], Deutsche Welle, 6 March 17; Civil Rights & Livelihood Watch, "Women's Rights Defender Ye Haiyan Ordered by Beijing's Songzhuang Government To Move" [Nu quan hanwei zhe ye haiyan bei bei jingzi songzhuang zhengfu xialing bai banjuan], 18 January 17.

61Zhong Yi, "NPC Delegate Sun Xiaomei: To Protect Women's Legal Labor Rights, Employment Discrimination Should Be Eliminated" [Renda daibiao sun xiaomei: weihu funu hefa laodong quan ying xiaochu jiuye qishi], China News Service, 12 March 17; "Prolonged Maternity

65 Wang Lianzhang, “Restaurant To Serve Feminist Chef Apology, Court Orders,” Sixth Tone, 21 September 16.

67 “Shenzhen’s First Gender-Based Employment Discrimination Case: Female College Student Takes Bureau of Human Resources and Social Security to Court” [Shenzhen xingbie juuye qishi di yi yao: mei xue fangzhi shengxueyi ren shi shi bao], People's Daily, 26 November 17.

69 Supreme People’s Court Model Cases on Enhancing Core Socialist Values” [Zuigao renmin fayuan guanyu hongyang shehui zhuyi hexin jiazhiguan dianxing anli], reprinted in People’s Daily, 15 September 16; Wang Chunxia, “Protect Women’s Rights to Equal Employment Through Law” [Yifa baohu funu pingdeng juuye quan], China Women’s News, 23 August 16.

70 Supreme People’s Court Model Cases on Enhancing Core Socialist Values” [Zuigao renmin fayuan guanyu hongyang shehui zhuyi hexin jiazhiguan dianxing anli], reprinted in People’s Daily, 15 September 16; Wang Chunxia, “Protect Women’s Rights to Equal Employment Through Law” [Yifa baohu funu pingdeng juuye quan], China Women’s News, 23 August 16.

72 Fu Dongyan, “Anti-Discrimination Law for Employment Should Be Introduced Soon” [Fan jiabao fa shishi yilai quanguo fayuan guanyu hongyang shehui zhuyi hexin jiazhiguan dianxing anli], People’s Daily, 26 November 17.

73 Yang Yifan, “Protecting Rural Women's Land Contract Rights” [Weihu nongcun funu tudi changbao quanyi], China Women’s News, 6 March 17.

75 Wei Zhezhe, “Real Estate Bought in Wedlock, Why Can’t a Name Be Added?” [Henuei gouzhi fangchan, weishu bu neng jia mingzi?], People’s Daily, 19 October 16.

76 Supreme People’s Court Guidance on ‘Certain Issues on the Application of the PRC Marriage Law’ (Three)” [Zuigao renmin fayuan guanyu shiye zongguo renmin gongheguo hunyin fa], people’s Daily, 9 August 11, 11. See also CECC, 2015 Annual Report, 8 October 15, 174.

78 Domestic Abuse Towards Women Happen Every 7.4 Seconds in China,” CRI English, 25 November 16.

79 PRC Anti-Domestic Violence Law [Zhonghua renmin gongheguo fayuan jiating baoli fa], passed 27 December 15, effective 1 March 16, chap. 4.

80 Luo Sha, “Nation's Courts Issue Total of 1,284 Protection Orders Since Implementation of Anti-Domestic Violence Law” [Fan jiabao fa shishi yilai quanguo fayuan fengxian renshen anquan baohu ling 1284 fen], Xinhua, 19 July 17. See also CECC, 2016 Annual Report, 6 October 16, 180.

81 Bibek Bhandari, “Domestic Violence Ignored by Most Employers, Study Finds,” Sixth Tone, 9 May 17.

84 Ibid. See also “Effectiveness of Chinese Laws Against Abuse,” CCTV, 25 November 16.

Status of Women

87 Yu Mingshan, “Chinese Family Planning Association: Over 30 Percent of Surveyed College Students Suffered Sexual Violence or Harassment” [Zhongguo jisheng xiehui: chao san cheng shoufang daxuesheng ceng zao xing baoli huo xing saorao], Xinmin Evening Post, 27 September 16; Catherine Lai, “Over 30 Per Cent of College Students in China have Experienced Sexual Violence or Harassment—Survey,” Hong Kong Free Press, 29 September 16.