China: List of Political Prisoners

Detained or Imprisoned as of October 10, 2011

(1,441 cases)

- This document, published by the Congressional-Executive Commission on China (CECC) contains information on political and religious prisoners currently known or believed to be detained or imprisoned in China. Cases are listed according to the date of detention in descending order, placing the most recent detentions first. The PPD was created and is maintained by the CECC and is accessible and searchable by the public at ppd.cecc.gov.
- As of October 10, 2011, the PPD contained information on a total of 6,638 cases of political or religious imprisonment in China. Of those, 1,441 are cases of political and religious prisoners currently known or believed to be detained or imprisoned, and 5,197 are cases of prisoners who are known or believed to have been released, or executed, who died while imprisoned or soon after release, or who escaped.
- The CECC notes that there are considerably more than 1,441 cases of current political and religious imprisonment in China. The CECC works on an ongoing basis to add cases of political and religious imprisonment to the PPD.

List does not include all Tibetan detentions on or after March 10, 2008, or Uyghur detentions on or after July 5, 2009.

Officials took them as the priests held a retreat for Catholic priests and held them at the Dongming County PSB Detention Center, where officials reportedly pressured them to join the state-controlled Catholic Patriotic Association. Sources indicate that authorities held Zhao, Li, and Sun until at least August 6 and had released them by August 26. On August 25, 2011, officials in Dongming reportedly ordered Wang to serve two years of reeducation through labor (RTL) at the Jining RTL Center, located in Jinan municipality, Shandong, after Wang refused to join the state-controlled church. Wang reportedly suffers from high blood pressure.

The report did not specify the location of the shop, but the report title indicated that the detention took place in “eastern Tibet.” The report provided an image of Jokhang Plaza in central Lhasa, TAR, an area where many Tibetans operate shops and stalls. Police allegedly ordered the shop closed and accused Kunsang Choegyal of selling CDs that contained “speeches” by the Dalai Lama and because he had an image of the Dalai Lama in his cell phone. Information is unavailable on his place of detention. Ten days prior to detention he was walking with friends along a street when “someone came and took his cell phone.” The report did not specify whether the phone was stolen or confiscated by security officials. Kunsang Choegyal reportedly hails from “Jordha county,” possibly a reference to Jomda (Jiangda) county, Chamdo (Changdu) prefecture, in the eastern TAR. “Jordha” may have been the location of the shop and the place of detention.

Citing a Tibetan source in Gannan, RFA reported the monks had been hiding since 2008, when they fled after Gyalmo monks staged a protest. Police were waiting for them when they returned, the source told RFA. Authorities released Kaljam and Yonten after an unspecified period. Information is not available on accusations or charges against Tenzin Gyatso and Jigme Samten, or their place of detention. RFA’s source said that about 20 monks were detained for protesting in 2008. According to a 2008 TGiE report (16 April 08), on April 14, 2008, security officials detained 9 Gyalmo monks in connection with a March 16 protest. Xinhua (9 April 08) reported rioting during protests on March 14-19, 2008, in six Gannan counties, including Xiahe. No information is available indicating that the Gyalmo protest was violent or that Tenzin Gyatso or Jigme Samten engaged in violence.

Sichuan Province	According to an RFA report (19 July 11), at about 9:00 AM on July 15, 2011, public security officials detained Tibetan male Ngawang Phuntsog (age 34) approximately five minutes after he began a peaceful political protest in the market area of the seat of Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi TAP, Sichuan province. According to an RFA source residing in Switzerland, Ngawang Phuntsog was "wearing" a Tibetan national flag and carried a bag of leaflets. Police allegedly fired rubber bullets at his legs, beat him severely, detained him, and took him away, RFA's source reported, citing "witness accounts." Ngawang Phuntsog's father attempted to leave clothing for him at his place of detention—not identified in the report but likely the Ganzi County PSB Detention Center. Police refused to accept the clothing and turned his father away. According to RFA's source, Ngawang Phuntsog reportedly visited Dargye Monastery (about 30 kilometers from the county seat) prior to the protest, made a religious offering, and told monks that previously he had "never done anything worthwhile," but that he was about "to do something good." Information is not available on criminal charges, if any, against him.

Officials detained Nyima, a Tibetan Buddhist teacher (lama), on July 14, according to an RFA source. The report implied that Nyima's detention was protest-related, but did not provide information about Nyima's protest activity, the name of his monastery, or his place of detention. Prior to Nyima's detention, security officials in Zuogong reportedly detained villagers for protesting against mining activity on July 6, July 7, and June 30, according to an RFA source, and on July 2 police detained 3 village leaders who traveled to Lhasa to express objections to the mining and detentions. After "around 200" Chinese workers arrived in Zuogong in May to work at mining locations, officials had warned local residents that protests against mining activity "would be construed as politically motivated," the source said. Authorities reportedly searched his home, confiscated his computer, and ordered him to serve 10 days of administrative detention. Reports do not specify the location where he served the administrative detention. On July 24, authorities reportedly criminally detained him on suspicion of "inciting subversion of state power" (Criminal Law, Article 105(2)). According to CHRD, "officers indicated Wu had been criminally detained for spreading 'bad information' online and 'overhyping' certain issues , likely through his active use of Twitter." Authorities also warned other rights activists, including Li Wenge and Qian Jin, not to make appeals on Wu's behalf. CHRD reported on (September 13, 2011), that authorities formally arrested Wu, but the report did not provide the date of arrest. Wu is held at Bengbu City No. 2 Detention Center.

Later that day, the Jinan Municipal Reeducation Through Labor (RTL) Committee ordered Li to serve 21 months of RTL for "endangering state security" and "inciting subversion of state power." RFA (13 July 11) reported that the RTL decision alleged that Li had openly attacked "China's government … [Party leaders] … and China's socialist system" on January 16 and February 6, 2011, at the Hero Mountain Square in Jinan. Li had reportedly petitioned local and Beijing officials multiple times since her home was forcibly demolished in 2007. In 2010, after authorities detained her for 17 days, she filed a lawsuit challenging the legality of her detention. CHRD indicated that the RTL Committee's decision was "in retaliation for the lawsuit she filed." It is not clear where she is currently held, though CHRD (26 July 11) reported that Jinan authorities accepted Li's application to reconsider the RTL decision in late July, and a final decision is expected by September.

Beginning at about 5:00 AM that day—the Dalai Lama’s birthday—Dorje used an automobile to drive around the area and tied white Tibetan offering scarves (khata) to objects such as trees and utility poles to celebrate the birthday. According to the report, he took between 1,500 and 2,000 offering scarves in the vehicle; the report did not state how many he had tied up. Security officials reportedly came to the monastery later that day and asked him if he had put up the scarves. He allegedly confessed and the police took him away. Police reportedly also detained a young, unidentified young male relative (a student), who had accompanied Dorje that morning and was staying at Zhabten with him. Information on their place of detention is not available.

The monks allegedly shouted slogans calling for Tibetan freedom and human rights in Tibet. Police detained Tashi Tsewang "almost immediately" and took him away. Information is not available on Tashi Tsewang's place of detention or on the identity of the second monk and whether or not police detained him. Tashi Tsewang, age 19, hails from Dargye Monastery, located in Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan province. According to ICT, the protest was the first to take place on Lhasa's Barkor since March 2008, when a wave of protests began in Lhasa and spread across the Tibetan autonomous areas of China.

CHRD reports that officials detained Yao this time to prevent him from training independent people's congress election candidates and monitors. Officials reportedly held him in hotel rooms in various locations. In mid-July, CHRD reported that officials claimed Yao had escaped detention on July 4th and in August reported that Beijing national security officers had re-detained Yao on August 6th. Yao and his family are currently under "soft detention" with 24-hour surveillance and limited freedom of movement. Unknown individuals reportedly vandalized their home, made threatening phone calls, and cut utilities on at least one occasion. Since October 2010, authorities have detained Yao on at least six other occasions, for days or weeks, including to prevent him from meeting with specific people or investigating alleged rights abuses. After mid-February, authorities heightened their surveillance of Yao and restricted his movements.

According to CHRD (3 June 11) and the SCMP (5 June 11), Beijing authorities detained Bao Tong, former Secretary to Party head Zhao Ziyang, on June 1, 2011 and "invited" him to go to a hotel near a hot spring so that he would not contact journalists as the anniversary of the 1989 crackdown on the Tiananmen protests approached. Previously, the Central Committee detained Bao after the 1989 protests. Two years later, he was formally arrested and in 1992 tried for leaking plans of the crackdown to the students. After a trial of only 45 minutes, Bao was sentenced to seven years for "inciting counterrevolutionary activities and divulging state secrets." Released in 2001, a 24-hour surveillance team still keeps close watch on him. Security agents follow Bao and his wife when they go out. Despite this oppressive supervision, Bao has taken the opportunity to speak freely on rights and reform in China, as in his essay "China's Abysmal Human Rights Record", published in the WSJ on April 5 2004. Although his detention is likely to be permanent, Bao Tong and his old school friend Dr. Jiang Yanyong belong to a very thin elite of elder statesmen who dare to "speak truth to power in China."

Officials reportedly held Zhang and Xie at a police station in Chengde for several hours before holding them at a hotel in Shijiazhuang city, Hebei. No further information regarding their whereabouts is available. Authorities have reportedly detained Zhang in connection to his unregistered religious activities at least 11 times since 2005, including 5 times since January 2009. According to RFA (14 June 10) and CAA (15 June 10), public security officers detained Zhang and Xie on June 13, 2010, as they traveled to Yancheng prefecture, Jiangsu province, held them in a hotel, questioned Zhang about his plans to visit a church in Yancheng and a Christian in Beijing who had returned from the U.S., and released them on June 15. Sources do not indicate where authorities took them into custody or where the authorities were from.

According to an April 18, 2011 CHRD blog post (via Blogspot), authorities in Shanghai municipality detained petitioner Jin Yuehua and 30 others on the morning of April 18, 2011 for filing their sixth application to demonstrate against the forced demolition of homes. Public security officers reportedly went to Jin's home that afternoon and took away her computer and notebook, and a computer belonging to her child. Authorities reportedly confiscated only materials related to the cases of other petitioners, and not those related to her case. According to CHRD (information also available in English), Jin started petitioning 11 years ago when authorities forcibly demolished her home and did not provide compensation and resettlement. The CHRD article also reported that authorities have, over the years, monitored her actions and placed her in "soft detention." Available sources, however, did not indicate the location of her latest detention or her current whereabouts.

(general location)	3	Sichuan Province	According to May 7, 2010, Phayul and TCHRD reports apparently citing the same source, public security officials detained Kirti Monastery monk Konchog Tsultrim on an unspecified date “after March 16,” 2011, when Kirti monk Phuntsog committed self-immolation near the monastery, located in Aba (Ngaba) county, Aba T&QAP, Sichuan province. On April 11, security officials detained Kirti monk Lobsang Dargye. Both detentions reportedly took place at Kirti during a crackdown involving “patriotic education” following the self-immolation. The Aba (Ngaba) County People’s Court sentenced both monks to three years in prison: Lobsang Dargye on May 2 and Konchog Tsultrim in early May. Information is not available on criminal charges or their place of imprisonment. Kirti monk Lobsang Dargye (age 31, record 2011-00401) apparently is not Kirti monk Lobsang Dargye (age 22, record 2011-00320), Phuntsog’s younger brother. Phuntsog committed self-immolation on the third anniversary of a large-scale protest in Aba county in 2008 that included some Tibetan rioting and resulted in PSB officials and PAP opening fire and allegedly killing at least 10 Tibetans.

According to RFA sources, public security officials issued warrants for their arrest soon after the protest and detained one relative of each wanted man: Tsering Kyipo's father, Sangpa (age 53); Lobsang Thubten’s mother, Choetso (age 64); and Jampa Ngodrub's brother, Mochag (age 47. Information is unavailable on their precise date of detention. Police took them to the Dege PSB Detention Center, fined each family 20,000 yuan, and said that each would remain detained until the protestors surrender or are captured. Officials reportedly held him in detention in Chengdu city, Sichuan’s capital, but the reports were inconsistent on whether he remained detained as of May: RFA reported his release but TP implied that he remained detained. Information is not available on the reason for his detention or, if he was released, whether officials allowed him to return to Kirti. In May 2010, International Campaign for Tibet reported that Sherab Gyatso had been detained in 2008 and released by January 2009, based on a January 5, 2009, High Peaks Pure Earth article. According to TP, he served four years’ imprisonment from 1998-2002 for putting up posters describing Chinese government violations of its laws on human rights protection. Sherab Gyatso's book, "We Need To Wake Up," was published by the Gansu Nationalities Publishing House in 2007, HPPE said.

Sun reportedly had attended a meal with other activists on February 15, 2011. Police found a photo of the event on the computer of Liu Shihui, the missing lawyer who was beaten and injured by unidentified assailants on February 20 while he waited for a bus to one of the locations designated as a site for "Jasmine Revolution" protests. RFA connected Sun's detention to a broader crackdown that may be related to the protests. Sun's current whereaboust are not known.

Previously, according to CHRD and a court sentencing document (CHRD via Boxun 5/410), Beijing public security officers criminally detained rights defender Zhou Li on August 12, 2009. The Chongwen district court convicted Zhou on May 4, 2010 for “creating a disturbance” and sentenced her to a fine of 2,000 yuan and one year in prison. The Beijing No. 2 Intermediate People’s Court upheld Zhou’s sentence on July 6 following her decision to withdraw the appeal. Authorities allege she organized protests in March and April 2009 outside of Peking University in response to the remark by professor Sun Dongdong that 99% of petitioners suffer from mental illness. Zhou’s lawyer argued she was not guilty because she did not organize, lead, or incite the petitioners who protested. Zhou’s lawyer noted several procedural irregularities in the case. Among other issues, Zhou’s lawyer noted that the court did not allow witnesses to testify at the trial. Zhou was released from Chongwen Detention Center on August 11, 2010 after completing her sentence.

According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders (22 April 11), authorities arrested rights defender and democracy advocate Wang Lihong on April 20, 2011. According to Radio Free Asia (22 March 11), public security officials from Beijing's Chaoyang district detained Wang on March 21, and police seized computers, DVDs, and books from her home. CHRD reported (26 March 11) that Wang was criminally detained on charges of "creating a disturbance" and being held at the Chaoyang District PSB Detention Center. For the last six months Wang reportedly had been under "soft" detention and unable to engage in any outside activities. Officials loosened restrictions on Wang on March 19 and she had traveled to Henan province to visit several activists, including Cheng Jianping, the rights defender currently serving one year of reeducation of labor for a Twitter message. In October 2010, police in Beijing detained Wang after she and others gathered in Beijing's Ditan Park to celebrate the awarding of the Nobel Peace Prize to Liu Xiaobo (CHRD, 9 October 10). Wang reportedly served eight days of administrative detention for "disturbing social order."

A substantial number of Tibetans participated in the protests (International Campaign for Tibet, 17 March 11, 18 March 11). On an unspecified date, an unidentified court sentenced Paljor on an unspecified charge linked to his protest activity to three years' imprisonment; authorities transferred him to Mianyang Prison, RFA reported. The prison is located in Fucheng district, Mianyang city, Sichuan province. Monk Phuntsog committed self-immolation on the third anniversary of a large-scale protest in Aba in 2008 that included some Tibetan rioting and resulted in PSB officials and PAP opening fire and allegedly killing at least 10 Tibetans.

According to CFP, authorities notified Liu’s ex-husband a few days later that they had criminally detained her at the Nanning No. 1 Detention Center on suspicion of "inciting subversion of state power" (a crime under Art. 105 of China’s Criminal Law). A source quoted in the CFP report reportedly tied the criminal detention to Liu’s participation in a “revolutionary singing gathering” in Beijing and reported that authorities were investigating Liu’s connection to a “jasmine gathering.” Liu reportedly leads a group that advocates for the economic rights of women who marry out of their villages. Authorities reportedly released Liu in early April to await trial. As of May 23, 2011, no information was available regarding the proposed trial date.

When she arrived, officials reportedly detained her on suspicion of "using a cult to undermine the implementation of the law," a crime under Art. 300 of China's Criminal Law. Officials now are reportedly holding her at the Qu County PSB Detention Center. Officials in Qu county had previously detained members of Liao's congregation in connection with their unregistered religious activities at least twice: once on September 26, 2010, and once in 2008. In both cases, Liao reportedly hired legal counsel to seek redress, and the RFA report quotes a member of the house church as saying that one of the officials involved told members of the house church during the most recent incident that the PSB was upset about Liao's efforts to seek legal redress in 2008.

Authorities released her on bail on April 8 to await trial and placed her under residential surveillance on April 9. Reports do not provide additional details regarding the underlying reason for her detention, but speculate it may be related to an online conversation she had about "Jasmine revolution" demonstrations. Reports state Liu said authorities questioned her about her relationship with other rights activists. Liu reportedly is a Charter 08 signatory, and previously, she had repeatedly petitioned higher-level officials about the demolition of her home in 2007, for which authorities sent her to administrative detention for five days at an unspecified time. Liu is currently under residential surveillance and reportedly has submitted an appeal regarding her detention. Liu claims authorities detained her arbitrarily and that she was mistreated while in detention.

Sichuan Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD) (February 22, 2011, March 31, 2011, and September 21, 2011), and an official public security bureau (PSB) detention notice via CHRD (February 22), officials from the domestic security protection unit of the Suining city PSB, Sichuan province, criminally detained democracy advocate Chen Wei on February 20, 2011, on suspicion of "inciting subversion of state power" (Criminal Law, Article 105(2)). Authorities formally arrested him on the same charge on March 28. Chen signed Charter 08 and it is likely the charges against him are related to his rights defense and democracy advocacy activities. Officials prevented Chen from meeting with his lawyer for six months, making their September meeting the first. In the past, authorities had imprisoned Chen for more than a year for his participation in the 1989 Tiananmen demonstrations. Authorities also imprisoned him for five years from 1992 to 1997 for "counterrevolutionary propaganda and incitement," for his participation in banned political parties, including the China Freedom and Democracy Party. Officials are reportedly currently holding Chen in the Suining City PSB Detention Center.

Sources do not provide additional information regarding the reason for Ding's arrest, although his detention comes amid calls for citizens to join "jasmine rallies" in multiple locations across China. Previously, authorities imprisoned Ding Mao for a period of approximately eight years for his participation in the 1989 democracy protests in Lanzhou, Gansu province, and for his role in organizing/leading the unofficial "China Social Democratic Party" labeled a "counterrevolutionary group." He is likely being held in the Mianyang city PSB detention center.

According to Human Rights Watch (22 February 11), on February 19, 2011, public security officers in Beijing municipality detained human rights lawyer Teng Biao. According to Human Rights in China (23 February 11), on February 19, 2011, police searched Teng's home and seized two computers, a copier-fax machine, printed materials, documentaries, and photos of Chen Guangcheng. Police told Teng's family that he was being detained at the Beijing Municipal Public Security Bureau, Dongcheng district, Beijing. His family did not receive any official notification of detention. Information on his current location is unavailable. Authorities have previously subjected Teng to monitoring and detention for his rights activities, including those on behalf of Protestant house churches. According to the Guardian (10 October 10), in October 2010, police prevented Teng from meeting with journalists and joining celebrations prior to the Nobel peace prize award ceremony for Liu Xiaobo. According to the New York Times (9 March 08), Beijing public security officials detained Teng for 41 hours in March 2008 in connection to public criticism of the Chinese government and the Olympics.

Xue’s family had no news until his father found on May 4 that authorities in Jining city, Shandong province have formally arrested Xue on charges of “inciting subversion of state power” (Criminal Law 105(2)). Reports do not provide the reason for Xue's arrest but it comes amid the crackdown following anonymous online calls for non-violent "Jasmine Revolution" rallies. Previously, according to Dui Hua Information and a copy of a court sentencing document available from Boxun, on February 8, 2010, the Shenzhen Intermediate People's Court sentenced Xue Mingkai to 18 months in prison on charges of "subversion of state power;" he was released in early November 2010. Authorities claimed Xue had joined the overseas China Democracy Party in 2009, had recruited others, and had planned to start an online party in 2006. According to his mother, court authorities did not acknowledge medical records from 2006 showing that Xue had a mental illness.

Police detained Jangchub after he made statements calling for “religious freedom in Tibet,” according to a monk who spoke to RFA on the condition of anonymity. TCHRD subsequently reported that in late 2009, Jiangda authorities took control of the land where Jophu is located “for development reasons,” resulting in a local protest for which officials blamed Jangchub. Police detained a second Jophu monk, “Pesang,” in “January 2011” [possibly January 2010], apparently in connection to the protest. In March 2011 a “local court” sentenced Jangchub and Pesang respectively to 3 years and 2 years and 6 months in prison. Information is unavailable on criminal charges and the name of the court. Officials planned to transfer Pesang from Chamdo PSB Detention Center to Pome Prison (Powo Tramo); authorities allegedly tortured Jangchub, resulting in hospitalization as of May 2011.

According to a Tibetan from Dzoege who fled to India and spoke to VOT, public security officials did not disclose the reason for the detention at the time of detention. The source implied that authorities may have acted against Zoepa Gyatso because of his involvement in an "environmental campaign" and his support of the Dalai Lama's position in a Tibetan Buddhist religious dispute (regarding a deity known as Dorje Shugden). Security officials previously had summoned him to a PSB office and warned him against such activities, the source told VOT. His family later learned that he was held at the Hohhot Number 1 PSB Detention Center. Authorities reportedly detained Erden-uul in connection to his book's publication, which they cast as "illegal publishing" and "illegal operation of a business." Erden-uul also had been detained on two previous occasions. He reportedly served 8 months of reeducation through labor starting in 1992 after authorities detained him while he attempted to leave China for Mongolia. He was detained again for a reported "long period" starting in 1999 in connection to a collection of works he published that discussed human rights issues in Inner Mongolia, and he was known to have been out of detention as of 2003.

Authorities alleged that Cheng "disturbed social order" when on October 17 she re-tweeted a Twitter message from her fiance regarding anti-Japanese protests following a fishing incident between China and Japan in disputed waters. The tweet was reportedly satirical in tone and urged demonstrators to protest at the Japanese pavilion at the Shanghai 2010 World Expo. Cheng retweeted the comment, adding the words "Angry youth, charge!" Cheng has advocated on behalf of dissidents by traveling to their trials and posting information online about officials involved in their detention. Cheng also sent a Twitter message in support of awarding the Nobel Peace Prize to imprisoned Chinese writer Liu Xiaobo. Authorities detained her for a short period in August after she expressed support for imprisoned advocate Liu Xianbin. Cheng is serving her sentence at the Shibali River Women's RTL Center in Zhengzhou city, Henan.

She belongs to the banned Southern Mongolian Democratic Alliance and wrote on her blog that she planned to welcome Hada, the group's leader, upon his anticipated December 10, 2010, release from prison. She connected the PSB's actions to the blog posting. SMHRIC reported that authorities returned Govruud Huuchinhuu to her home the same day but put her under "house arrest." She was hospitalized for a stroke in late December, but kept under guard. After her reported release from the hospital on January 27, 2011, her son reported her whereabouts were unknown. SMHRIC later reported (29 September 11) she is at an unknown location in Tongliao and has been beaten repeatedly. According to SMHRIC, Govruud Huuchinhuu has written works critical of Chinese government policy in Inner Mongolia and has been detained and harassed multiple times in the past.

Region	According to RFA (7 October 10, 30 September 10), in late September and early October 2010, security officials in Biru (Driru) county, Naqu (Nagchu) prefecture, TAR, detained as many as 30 Tibetans for protesting against the start of work on a dam on the Gyalmo river, a tributary of the upper Salween. In addition, Tibetans believed the Chinese construction teams that had arrived in August would also begin mining on Naglha Dzamba, a mountain Tibetans regard as sacred. Workers left the area on September 22 or 23 after Tibetans confronted workers and local officials. They returned on September 26, claimed the mining had been “approved” by the TAR Communist Party secretary, and accused protest leaders of “separatism.” Officials detained about 10 alleged protest leaders, including Dorje Dragtsel and Palden Choedrag. On September 28, officials detained Buphel, Tsegon, and Samten, who had gone to Naqu, the prefectural capital, to petition against mining the mountain. Officials released the 3 men on September 30 after they paid fines allegedly totaling 50,000 yuan, but then detained Tsegon and Samten again the same day. Information is not available on the men’s place of detention.

A court in Zhangjiakou city, Hebei, sentenced Wang on November 14 to three years in prison for "organizing an unlawful meeting." Wang's attorney presented a permit at the trial indicating that local authorities had approved both the church construction and the consecration ceremony. Authorities released Wang from Jidong Prison (China's largest prison, according to the Laogai Handbook 2007-2008, 152) in Tangshan city, Hebei province on July 24, 2010, according to CathNews China (28 July 2010). On his way to the front gate of the prison, several public security officers seized him and put him in a police car. Members of Wang's congregation believe that authorities took him to pressure him to affiliate with the state-controlled church, according to AsiaNews (29 July 2010). Information on his current whereabouts is unavailable.

On an unspecified date authorities ordered Sonam Choephel to serve either 1 year (Middle Way) or 18 months (ICT, TCHRD) of RTL for organizing petitioning for Rinchen Samdrub's release. Police detained Tashi Tobgyal, a 30-year old school teacher, on July 5 in Lhasa, where he had gone to seek information about Rinchen Dorje, who had disappeared. Tashi Tobgyal had heard that Rinchen Dorje was hospitalized in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region for treatment of burns caused by an electric baton (TCHRD), then returned to the TAR after an escape attempt (ICT). All of the men lived in Gongjue (Gonjo) county, Changdu (Chamdo) prefecture, TAR.

On March 25, 2011, the Suining Intermediate Court, sentenced Liu to 10 years in prison (CHRD 25 March 11). According to HRIC (25 March 11), the trial was marked with procedural irregularities. The indictment issued by the Suining Court on November 11, 2010, noted Liu should be tried as a recidivist and stated that during a period of deprivation of political rights, Liu had penned and posted outside of China articles inciting subversion. Authorities sentenced him to two-and-a-half years in prison in 1992, for his role in the 1989 June 4th democracy protests, and in 1999, to 13 years for subversion for founding an "illegal" magazine, organizing a human rights group, and for trying to register a Preparatory Committee of the China Democracy Party. The UN Working Group on Arbitrary Detention determined Liu's 1999 detention was arbitrary. Liu is reportedly being held in Chuanzhong prison in Nanchong city, Sichuan province.

Tibetans living near the monastery had expanded their residences in past years by “encroaching” into the public road leading to the monastery, said Phayul’s source, a Tibetan living in India who has contacts in Dzoege. Officials reportedly did not respond to complaints. After additional alleged encroachment, monastery officials and local leaders met to discuss the matter and the quarrel took place. The 7 Tibetan leaders are Choelho, Konlho, Atam, Lhago, Jigje Kyab, Loche, and Dorje Tsering. According to Phayul’s source, government officials exploited the dispute politically by accusing local leaders of convening an “illegal gathering to plot antigovernment activities.” Information is not available about the leaders’ place of detention.

Officials reportedly accused Rongke (or Jangtse Donkho, poet and writer), detained June 21, Buddha (pen name, employed as a medical doctor), detained June 26, and Kalsang Jinpa (poet and writer), detained July 19, of "inciting splittism" by writing articles about Tibet and the Tibetan protests that began in March 2008. Authorities claimed the articles encouraged Tibetan scholars "to participate in 'splittist' activities." Officials also accused them of writing for the magazine, Drum of the Time (Durab Kyinga). On October 28, 2010, the Aba Intermediate People's Court, in Ma'erkang (Barkham), the prefectural capital, tried the men for "inciting splittism" (Criminal Law, Art. 103). On December 30, the same court sentenced Jangtse Donkho and Buddha to 4 years in prison and Kalsang Jinpa to 3 years (RFA, 30 December 10). Officials transferred them to Mianyang Prison (RFA, 25 January 11).

At the time of detention, Zhang was at the Zhaodong People's Park, where she and two other practitioners allegedly "talk[ed] to people about Falun Gong and the persecution" that the group faces. Authorities released Zhang briefly on June 22, before detaining her again a few hours later, when public security officers reportedly "broke into Ms. Zhang's home and took away 6,000 yuan in cash, a mobile phone and a computer." Authorities then took her to the Zhaodong PSB Detention Center. She is now reportedly serving six years of imprisonment at the Heilongjiang Provincial Women's Prison. Information is not available on the date of the trial or the charges against her. Since 1999, Zhang reportedly "has been arrested and detained several times," including 18 months reeducation through labor starting in 2001.

Authorities first detained Liu, a resident of Foshan's Nan Zhuang village, on June 7. According to RFA, authorities proceeded to give Liu 10 days of criminal detention that evening for "intentionally destroying public property." On June 17, authorities continued to hold Liu in criminal detention, though this time accusing him of "obstructing official duties" that Liu allegedly committed in October 2007. CRD reported that Liu Xiantong has been active as a land rights defender since 2003, and was once detained by authorities for more than three months in 2006 as a result of his work. CRD noted that one day before his June 7 detention, Liu went to the People's Court in Guangdong province to request a copy of the judgment of a lawsuit against the Guangdong Provincial Government's illegal acquisition of land; CRD stated that Liu's recent lawsuit against the provincial government and the provincial governor maybe the primary reason why authorities detained and arrested him. Liu's current whereabouts are unknown.

Yengisar county state security officials had originally detained Memet Turghun Abdulla in August 2009 for writing an online article about Han Chinese in Guangdong province killing Uyghur factory workers in June 2009, an event which prompted demonstrations in Urumqi on July 5, 2009. He was subsequently confined to his house by authorities. The RFA source said it is unknown who detained him in May, and local police denied knowledge about his disappearance. However, a recent internal Party bulletin said he had been detained for distributing "separatist ideas." Further details about his case, including his current location, are not known.

Henan Province	According to the Workers' Forum (23 August 10), authorities in Pingdingshan city, Henan province, detained Miao Wanli, a worker at the Ping Textile Group factory, on May 30. The same article also reported that, on July 8, Miao was "officially arrested for 'disturbing social order.'" Miao reportedly participated in a strike that began on May 11, demonstrating against what workers believed to be unfair compensation after the enterprise's reorganization. The Ping Textile Group factory was formerly a collective enterprise, founded with capital that workers contributed. After three bankruptcy filings and reorganizations, manager Zhang Xianshun became the owner. Dissatisfied with the compensation checks, workers stopped production, but authorities moved in violently to clear the strikers. In response, Miao and 28 other workers petitioned provincial authorities in Zhengzhou city, and Miao was detained when he returned to Pingdingshan. He is currently held at the Pingdingshan PSB station; no further information is available on his current status.

Hebei Province	According to Clear Wisdom (24 September 10, 29 October 10), public security officers and officials from the 6-10 Office—an extralegal, Party-run security apparatus that implements the ban against Falun Gong—in Leting county, Tangshan city, Hebei province entered the home of Falun Gong practitioner Li Yanling on May 25, 2010. They searched her home; took several personal items from the home, including a computer; and took her into custody in apparent connection to her practice of Falun Gong. They held her at the Leting County PSB Detention Center, and on October 21, her trial began in the Leting County People's Court. Sources do not explicitly state the charges against the defendant, but the October 19 report quotes Li's defense attorney as saying that "punishing the defendant for practicing Falun Gong" was "excessive" and that Chinese judicial authorities used the charge "using a cult organization to undermine the implementation of the law" (a crime under Art. 300 of China's Criminal Law) to "oppress, persecute, and frame Falun Gong practitioners." Sources do not indicate that the court had sentenced Li as of October 19, 2010.

Authorities halted publication of Dogru Tsultrim’s privately managed Tibetan-language journal, Khawa’i Tsesog. Dogru Tsultrim hailed from Hainan (Tsolho) TAP, Qinghai province and joined Gomang in 2005. He also studied Buddhism at Lutsang Monastery in Guinan (Mangra) county, Hainan TAP, and Ditsa Monastery in Hualong Hui Autonomous County, Haidong prefecture, Qinghai. Phayul reported (25 May 10), that officials released Dogru Tsultrim in May 2009 but detained him again on May 24, 2010. A Phayul source speculated that the detention resulted from Dogru Tsultrim’s “plans to publish a compilation of Tibetan youth's feeling and thoughts” about the earthquake in Kyegudo, Yushu TAP, Qinghai. Police took him to the Ma’erkang PSB Detention Center in Ma’erkang, the Aba prefectural capital.

According to Clear Wisdom (25 October 10, 30 October 10), the Haidian District Court in Beijing sentenced Minzu University Professor and Falun Gong practitioner Liang Bo to three-and-a-half years in prison on October 22, 2010. The court reportedly convicted Liang for distributing Falun Gong DVDs at Minzu University and possessing Falun Gong books and materials. The school had reportedly fired her for practicing Falun Gong. Liang reportedly has been detained several times since 2003 for practicing Falun Gong. In August 2004, a court in Haikou city, Hainan province, gave her a sentence of three years, suspended for four years. Clear Wisdom alleges that a police officer from the Haidian Public Security Bureau beat, cursed, and deprived Liang of sleep after detaining her on May 20, 2010.

On May 17, authorities detained 75-year-old Dawa Khyenrab Wangchug (or Dawa, apparently regarded as a reincarnated Tibetan Buddhist teacher) and accused him of contacting the Dalai Lama about the search for the reincarnation of a Shag Rongpo teacher. Article 2 of government measures (translated by ICT) effective in 2007 asserted government control over identifying incarnations and banned involvement of any "foreign" group or individual. Officials stripped Dawa of his monastic posts, barred him from contact with Rongpo and the monks, and reportedly put him under apparent house arrest at his residence in Naqu county.

They told his wife they took him in connection with a letter (via CAA) he published on the Internet about harassment of his church. Authorities took him from his home again on May 8; on May 9, authorities gave his wife a notice of criminal detention for Wang for “gathering a mob to disrupt public order,” according to CAA. A release notice from Guangzhou’s Panyu District PSB Detention Center (via CAA, 14 June 10) states that authorities formally arrested Wang on June 9 for “impairing credit card management” and released him on bail on June 13 to await trial. According to CAA (17 August 10), on August 12, authorities in Guangzhou tried to pressure Wang to join the state-controlled church, took him to a police station on August 13, and released him that day. According to CAA (8 May 10), authorities in Guangzhou have taken Wang to police stations at least 10 times in the past 2 years and have repeatedly forced him to change church venues.

The Mianyang PSB formally arrested Zuo on May 28 on charges of "inciting subversion of state power." According to reports, Zuo may have been arrested because he had helped private-school teachers, who had staged demonstrations, to protect their employment rights, gave interviews to overseas media, and had published articles containing criticism of government policy. Zuo previously served a year in prison for his participation in the June 4, 1989, Tiananmen protests, and was sentenced to two years of RTL in 2006 for "inciting subversion of state power." In 2006, authorities accused him of being a member of the outlawed Union of Chinese Nationalists (Zhongguo Fanlan Lianmeng). He had nominated himself to run for the local people's congress and had spread pro-democracy materials on a school campus while he was a teacher. He is currently being held in the Santai county PSB detention center.

The officers found Falun Gong publications in Wu's home and on Zhu's person, took Yang and Wu from their homes, and took Wang and Zhu together from Wang's home. Sources do not indicate where the officers took the four women, but the officers released Yang and Wang on bail. On November 3, the Kunming Intermediate People's Court reportedly sentenced Wu to five years in prison and the other three each to four years in prison. The charge against Wu, Wang, and Zhu was reportedly "using a cult to undermine the implementation of the law" (a crime under Art. 300 of China's Criminal Law). Sources do not specify the exact charge against Yang. All four women reportedly have appealed the ruling to the Yunnan High People's Court, but sources do not provide further details about the appeal or the current whereabouts of the four women.

(general location)		Sichuan Province	According a TCHRD report (13 April 10), on April 8, 2010, security officials in Xinlong (Nyagrong) county, Ganzi (Kardze) TAP, Sichuan province detained monk Tashi (Abo Tashi) of Guru Monastery, located in Xinlong county, for participating in a political protest in the main market of the county seat and photographing the protest. Three other monks, Tsering Gyaltsen and Tsering Wangchug of Guru Monastery and Rigzin Dorje of Jamchon (or Jamjor) Monastery protested as Abo Tashi recorded the protest. The monks displayed a Tibetan flag, tossed handwritten leaflets, and shouted slogans calling for the Dalai Lama's return, Tibetan independence, and a halt to mining activity in Xinlong until security officials allegedly halted the protest and fired warning shots into the air. According to a subsequent TGiE report (7 June 11) that included a video clip of the protest (via TibetOnline), the monks escaped on motorcycles but police captured Tashi when his motorcycle broke down. The video clip ended before police appeared or fired any shots. No information is available on the outcome of Tashi's detention, his place of detention, or on whether the other monks were eventually detained.

The officials who detained Tashi Gyatso were from Gannan TAP prefectural-level offices, RFA sources said, but they took him to the Maqu PSB Detention Center. Officials visited Sarma the previous day, April 7, and told the monks that they knew some Sarma monks were engaged in "splittist" activities that threatened state and public security, witnesses told RFA. Police suspected Tashi Gyatso of "accessing and sharing banned Tibetan content on the Internet, speaking by phone with foreign [Tibetan] contacts, and connecting a television in his room to watch foreign broadcasts," local sources said.

Police confiscated cell phones, computers, and books. Previously, RFA and ICT reported in August 2009 that around July 26, 2009, police detained Tashi Rabten when he visited his family home in Ruo'ergai (Dzoege) county, Aba (Ngaba) T&QAP; he was released the following month. Tashi Rabten was the editor of a literary magazine, Shar Dungri (Eastern Snow Mountain), which authorities banned, and authored a book, Written in Blood, that focused on issues such as democracy and the wave of Tibetan protests that began in March 2008. He distributed about 400 of 1,000 copies of the book before it was banned. According to Phayul (20 November 10; 4 June 11, citing RFA) police held Tashi Rabten in Ma'erkang (Barkham), the Aba prefectural capital, and on June 2, 2011, the Aba Intermediate People's Court sentenced him to 4 years in prison for inciting separatism (Criminal Law, Art. 103). Information is unavailable on his place of imprisonment.

Based on information in the report, the flag-burning incident took place around March 20. It is not clear whether the incident took place in the Biru county seat or in a township the article referred to as Tsachu. Two weeks after detention, Kunchog Namgyal’s relatives did not know where he was held, according to a Tibetan living in exile who has contacts in the Biru area. Under Article 299 of China’s Criminal Law, “desecration” of the national flag can be punished with a period of imprisonment not more than three years.

Police placed a hood over his head and took him away. According to RFA "local information," officials detained Trinle for making phone calls to a location "outside of Tibet." He previously had worked as an official in Ngari prefecture, TAR, but was dismissed for criticizing Chinese policy in Tibet. He continued to live in Ngari as a businessman, a relative told RFA. A Tibet Express report (14 July 10, apparently reporting on the same person (Trinle; age 45; born in Markham; trader in Ngari prior to detention), provided a different detention date (mid-February), detention location (Lhasa), and reason for detention (listening to news about Tibet broadcast by media organizations outside of China and sharing information about the broadcasts with other persons). Trinle was held in a Chamdo prefecture detention center, the report said.

As of April 2010, Liu Changfu, Shi Mengen and Han Wendian were still in detention at an unknown location, as was Liu's wife, Yang Huilan, detained on February 2. Authorities previously disrupted a student church service at Liu's home on June 9, 2009, detaining Yang Huilan for 15 days, and Yang Xiaolan and Duan Chenglan for 10 days. More details about the current detentions of Liu, Yang Huilan, and the other students are not known.

Region	Based on a January 27, 2010, RFA report and a May 2, 2011, TCHRD report, on January 16 or 17, 2010, public security officials detained monk Jangchub, regarded by Tibetans as a reincarnated Tibetan Buddhist teacher (trulku), from Jophu (or Jorphu) Monastery in Jiangda (Jomda) county, Changdu (Chamdo) prefecture, TAR. Police detained Jangchub after he made statements calling for “religious freedom in Tibet,” according to a monk who spoke to RFA on the condition of anonymity. TCHRD subsequently reported that in late 2009, Jiangda authorities took control of the land where Jophu is located “for development reasons,” resulting in a local protest for which officials blamed Jangchub. Police detained a second Jophu monk, “Pesang,” in “January 2011” [possibly January 2010], apparently in connection to the protest. In March 2011 a “local court” sentenced Jangchub and Pesang respectively to 3 years and 2 years and 6 months in prison. Information is unavailable on criminal charges and the name of the court. Officials planned to transfer Pesang from Chamdo PSB Detention Center to Pome Prison (Powo Tramo); authorities allegedly tortured Jangchub, resulting in hospitalization as of May 2011.

Luo was reportedly held in criminal detention upon his return to Shaoyang for taking part in a December 2008 teachers' strike in Hunan to demand wages and benefits comparable to those given to civil servants. In late January 2010, Hunan authorities sentenced him to 2 years' reeducation through labor (RTL) for "disrupting social order." While in detention, authorities reportedly forced Luo to work 16 hours per day and only allowed him to sleep 4 hours per night, according to a Boxun article. Tang Jingling, a rights lawyer who had spoken to Luo's wife, told NTDTV that the RTL sentence was also related to his involvement with the case of Yang Kuansheng, the former deputy mayor of Wugang city in Hunan province. Before Luo's arrest, he was assisting Yang's family to seek justice in Beijing; Yang's family had rejected the local authorities' conclusion that he committed suicide by jumping out of a building in November 2009. Boxun reported that authorities transferred Luo to the Shaoyang city RTL detention center on March 6.

Officials transferred him to Yanqi Hui Autonomous County, Bayinguoleng Mongol Auto. Prefecture, XUAR, to face trial on 1998 charges of "tomb robbing" and trafficking in cultural relics that were dropped the same year. Persons close to Karma Samdrub, founder of the Three River Environmental Protection Association, believe that police in Changdu prefecture, TAR, hoped to use the old charge to punish him for trying to gain release for his brothers Rinchen Samdrub and Chime Namgyal, whom Chamdo police detained in August 2009 after they accused police of hunting protected wildlife. On June 22, 2010, the Yanqi People's Court tried Karma Dondrub on the old charges, and on June 24 sentenced him to 15 years in prison for "tomb robbing" (Criminal Law, Article 328). The Bayinguoleng Intermediate People's Court rejected his appeal. Karma Dondrub accused police of torturing and abusing him prior to the trial.

Authorities placed them in criminal detention two days later for “using a cult to undermine implementation of the law,” a crime under Article 300 of the Criminal Law. Gao Wenjun was later released on bail. On December 18, authorities formally arrested Ren and Jia on the same charges, along with Ma Fei and Lin Zhengyuan, who had been detained on November 19. In late November, authorities also placed church leader Gao Mao into criminal detention. Authorities held Ren, Jia, Ma, Lin, and Gao Mao at the Shuocheng district PSB detention center before transferring them to the Cheng district detention center in Changzhi city, after their formal arrests.

2010-00147	DET/suspend	property	Han	Hu Yulan	胡玉兰					F		chg/tri/sent-suspend	2009/11/27	Zigong (general location)	1	Sichuan Province	According to an August 20, 2010 RFA report, Hu Yulan and her husband, Liu Zhengyou, of Zigong municipality, Sichuan province, were arrested on December 7, 2009 on fraud charges. In January 2010, the PSB issued a report that Liu and Hu had fraudulently obtained nearly 20,000 yuan in pension funds. Liu was a long time rights defender in Zigong and was one of the farmers who had lost land. He went to Beijing to petition many times and the year of his sentencing, he and Hu were helping other petitioners prepare petitions, and disclosing cases of illegal detentions and imprisonment. In an August 23 report, CHRD characterized the fraud charges as groundless and as retaliation for Hu's and Liu's rights defense work. According to a CHRD weekly briefing of June 1-7, 2010, the procuratorate had twice sent the case back to the PSB for supplementary investigation, and had last received the case back from the PSB on April 15, 2010. The Ziliujing District Court in Zigong found the couple guilty of fraud on August 20, 2010. Liu was sentenced to 2 years imprisonment, and Hu was sentenced to one year and six months, but the sentence was suspended for 2 years and she was immediately released.

According to HRIC (13 November 09), police in Beijing detained Zhao Lianhai on November 13, 2009. After his own child became sick, Zhao became a prominent advocate for those affected by a tainted milk scandal which began in 2008 and officially poisoned 300,000 children. Many of the families were dissatisfied with the government's compensation plan. Zhao set up the "Kidney Stone Babies" Web site and encouraged parents to file lawsuits. He was arrested on December 17, 2009. On March 30, 2010, the Daxing District People's Court in Beijing held his closed trial and on November 10, sentenced him to two-and-a-half years in prison. The court said Zhao violated Article 293 of the Criminal Law, which prohibits "creating disturbances in a public place." Prosecutors alleged that Zhao organized meetings, spoke to reporters, and incited groups to gather before a court in Shijiazhuang city, Hebei province, and a Beijing police station. One of Zhao's lawyers called the verdict delay illegal. On December 28, 2010, Zhao was reportedly released on medical parole. His release came after Zhao surprised his lawyers by dismissing them and giving up his appeal.

In January 2010, the PSB issued a report that Liu and Hu had fraudulently obtained nearly 20,000 yuan in pension funds. Liu was a long time rights defender in Zigong, and was one of the area farmers who had lost his land. He frequently went to Beijing to petition. He and Hu were actively helping other petitioners prepare their petitions, and disclosing cases of illegal detentions and imprisonment. CHRD characterized the fraud charges as groundless and as retaliation for the couple's rights defense work. According to CHRD, the procuratorate sent the case back to the PSB twice for supplementary investigation, and had last received the case back from the PSB on April 15, 2010. The Ziliujing District Court in Zigong found the couple guilty of fraud on August 20, 2010. Liu was sentenced to 2 years imprisonment. Hu was sentenced to 1 ½ years, but the sentence was suspended for 2 years and she was immediately released. The exact location of Liu's prison is not known.

On July 23, 2010, the Urumqi Intermediate People's Court sentenced him to 15 years' imprisonment for endangering state security (ESS). A letter of support for Gheyret Niyaz, reprinted by Chinese Human Rights Defenders, listed the ESS crime as leaking state secrets (Criminal Law Article 111). Sources close to Gheyret Niyaz have connected his case to interviews he gave to overseas media surrounding protests and rioting in Urumqi in early July 2009. In court, authorities cited online essays by Gheyret Niyaz which were critical of government policy in Xinjiang. Until June 2009, Gheyret Niyaz had worked as an editor and manager for the Web site Uyghur Online, which later came under official scrutiny as authorities accused the site of contributing to incitement of rioting in July 2009. The report alleged that officials forced Zhao to confess to a crime by subjecting him to physical abuse, including sleep deprivation and death threats. The report did not state the crime Zhao is alleged to have committed. A court in Xiong County held his trial in April 2010. The court held another hearing on June 1, 2010, and requested that Zhao provide evidence of the forced confession. Another report by Clear Harmony (17 October 09) said that officials previously detained Zhao during the 2008 Beijing Summer Olympics in July 2008. At that time, authorities were attempting to detain Zhao's mother, also a Falun Gong practitioner, when they detained Zhao. The report did not specify the charges against Zhao or the length of his detention. The report said Zhao escaped from custody. Zhao is a government worker in Anxin county, Hebei. He is reportedly being held at the Xiong County Detention Center.

Officials reportedly deemed Choedar a leader of a large-scale protest in the Aba county seat in March 2008 and issued a warrant for his detention. (Kirti monks and other Tibetans staged an initially peaceful protest on March 16, 2008, that China Daily (26 March 08) reported became a riot resulting in property destruction.) Available reports have not attributed violent activity to Choedar. Police accused Donkho and Solha of sheltering Choedar and helping him evade capture until August 2009. Police released Solha after approximately five months. On April 9, 2010, the Aba Intermediate People's Court sentenced Choedar to 13 years in prison. On September 25, 2010, the same court sentenced Donkho to 5 years in prison for sheltering Choedar (probably Criminal Law, Art. 310). 2010-00373	DET	labor/association	Han	Zhao Dongmin	赵东民				legal advocate	M		chg/tri/sent	2009/08/19	Shaanxi (general location)	3	Shaanxi Province	The Xi'an Municipal Xincheng District People's Court in Xi'an city, Shaanxi province, sentenced worker rights defender and lawyer Zhao Dongmin to three years' imprisonment on October 19, 2010, for "mobilizing the masses to disrupt social order," according to an October 27, 2010, statement released by Zhao's lawyer, Li Jinsong. Prior to his sentencing, Zhao had been in detention since August 19, 2009, when authorities in Xi'an detained Zhao from his home and held him at the city's Xincheng district public security bureau (PSB) station for "gathering a crowd to disrupt social order," according to an August 27, 2009, Radio Free Asia article. Zhao reportedly formed a study group in April 2009 consisting of about 20 labor activists to represent the interests of about 300 workers from area enterprises. Zhao then applied to the Shaanxi provincial trade union to have his group officially registered. He also went to Beijing and submitted a letter making the same request to the All-China Federation of Trade Unions. No information is available on where he is currently imprisoned.

(Chushur)	13	Tibet [Xizang] Auto. Region	According to a September 16, 2010, Tibet Post report, on August 2, 2009, public security officials detained monk Wangdu Gyatso as he staged a solo protest in the capital of Changdu (Chamdo) prefecture, Tibet Autonomous Region. He called for Tibetan independence and the Dalai Lama's return, the report said. On September 8, 2010, the Changdu Intermediate People's Court reportedly sentenced him to 13 years in prison on an unidentified criminal charge (probably "inciting splittism," Criminal Law, Art. 103). Authorities did not provide Wangdu Gyatso's family any information about his location or status during the 13-month period between his detention and sentencing. Information is not available on his place of imprisonment. Wangdu Gyatso hails from Gongjue (Gonjo) county, Changdu prefecture, became a monk as a boy at "Gara Monastery" (location unknown), and studied Buddhist philosophy at "Palyul Monastery" (or Palyul Namgyal Jangchubling), located in the seat of Baiyu (Palyul) county, Ganzi (Kardze) TAP, Sichuan province, for several years prior to his imprisonment, according to the report.

Region	According to Radio Free Asia (26 August 09, 2 September 09), public security officers in Beijing took Uyghur Web site administrator Memetjan (Muhemmetjan) Abdulla away in mid-July 2009, after which time his whereabouts were unknown. Memetjan Abdulla was a journalist at China National Radio and also an administrator for the Web sites Uyghur Online and Selkin. Based on information that Memetjan Abdulla's friends sent to Radio Free Asia (20 December 10, 21 December 10), the Urumqi Intermediate People's Court tried and sentenced him to life in prison on April 1, 2010, at the same closed trial as for Gulmira Imin. Precise charges against him are not known. He reportedly translated a World Uyghur Congress announcement calling Uyghurs abroad to protest official handling of attacks against Uyghurs in Shaoguan, Guangdong, in June 2009, which he had taken from a Chinese-language Web site and reposted in translation on Selkin. He also reportedly spoke to foreign reporters in Beijing about the Shaoguan incident, which preceded demonstrations and riots in Xinjiang in July 2009. Authorities reportedly charged that he helped incite the July events. His prison location is not known.

Region	According to Radio Free Asia (6 March 11), public security officials in Aksu district, Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region, detained Tursunjan Hezim (Hézim), a Uyghur man who administered the Uyghur Web site Orkhun, in early July 2009, after demonstrations and riots occurred in Xinjiang starting on July 5. His whereabouts were unknown after that date, according to a source close to the case. His Web site focused on Uyghur history and culture and was among several sites that had Bulletin Board Services temporarily shut down during the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games and that were closed down after the July 2009 events. Authorities also detained and imprisoned Webmasters and staff of other Web sites. The Aksu Intermediate People's Court reportedly held a closed trial and sentenced Tursunjan Hezim in July 2010 to seven years' imprisonment. Information on the precise date of the sentence and the charges against him is not available. A source familiar with the case said authorities told Tursunjan Hezim's family about the sentence but did not inform them of the charges. Information is not available on the location where he is serving his sentence.

According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD) and the China Human Rights Lawyers Concern Group (CHRLCG), seven domestic security protection officers from the Beijing Public Security Bureau (PSB) took legal scholar and co-founder of Open Constitution Initiative (OCI) Xu Zhiyong into custody on July 29, 2009. On August 13, while Xu in custody at the Beijing No. 1 Detention Center, he was arrested for tax evasion. On August 14, Xu had his first meeting with lawyers Zhou Ze and Li Fangping. Xu's detention came shortly after authorities forced the closure of OCI (Gongmeng), a legal research and assistance organization that promoted rule of law and human rights, purportedly for alleged tax problems. On July 17, the Beijing Bureau of Civil Affairs raided the OCI office and declared it an "illegal" organization. Police have also taken OCI's chief financial officer, Zhuang Lu, into custody. Xu was released on bail on August 23, 2009.

Officials detained male Falun Gong practitioners Fang Tianming and Liu Jigang around the same time on an unspecified date. The reports implied, but did not state, that the detentions were due to Falun Gong practice and may have been linked to activity during the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games. The six persons were sentenced to imprisonment: Wu (5 years); Chen (4 years); Fang, Liu, Li Jiguo, and Li Xuezhen (3 years). The reports did not provide information on the criminal charge against them, the sentencing date and court (possibly the Wuxue Municipal People's Court), or their place(s) of imprisonment.

Ctr.	7	Liaoning Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD), domestic security protection officers in Dalian city, Liaoning province, abducted and beat former rights defense lawyer Wang Yonghang on July 4, 2009, causing fractures in his right ankle. Wang had served as defense counsel for several Falun Gong adherents. In May 2008, authorities refused to renew his lawyers' license. In August 2009, Wang was reportedly charged with violating Article 300 of the PRC Criminal Code, which criminalizes using "evil cults" to undermine implementation of the law. On October 16, 2009, the Dalian Shahekou District People's Court tried Wang in secret. Neither his defense lawyer, Lan Zhixue, nor his family, was informed of the trial. They learned of Wang's trial a week after the fact. On November 27, 2009, the court convicted Wang and sentenced him to seven years in prison. Wang is currently being held in the Dalian Detention Center, and his appeal is pending in the Dalian Intermediate People's Court.

He reportedly was in possession of a cloth "painted with the colors of the Tibetan flag," and a banner with which to wrap himself upon which he had written slogans calling for Tibetan independence, the Dalai Lama's long life, and for "China" to leave Tibet. First he ran toward a public market area and shouted slogans similar to those on the banner. Then, as he walked toward the Changdu PSB office, police detained him. Students from the same school went to the police station to demand their classmate's release and threatened to protest. Police refused their demand. Lobsang Nyandrag is held at the Changdu detention center. Information is not available about criminal charges, if any, against him.

In 1992, Hada founded the Southern Mongolian Democratic Alliance to promote self-determination and democracy in Inner Mongolia. According to DH, the Hohhot Intermediate People's Court sentenced him on December 26, 1996, to 15 years' imprisonment for "splittism" and "espionage," crimes under Articles 103 and 110 of China's Criminal Law. (Some sources report a November 11, 1996, sentence date.) Fellow activist Tegexi received a ten year sentence at the same trial for "splittism" and was released in early December 2002. The Inner Mongolia High People's Court rejected Hada's appeal in January 1997. Hada remains in the Inner Mongolia No. 4 Prison in Chifeng, where HRIC reports he is in poor health, has been denied proper medical treatment, and has been subject to routine physical abuse. Hada is due for release from prison on December 10, 2010.

Hunan Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders, police in Changsha city, Hunan province, detained rights defender Li Zhuoxi in May 2009. He is being held at the Changsha No. 1 PSB Center. The current charges against him are unclear. He recently helped organize a group called Citizens' Association for Government Oversight. Li also signed Charter 08, a document released in December 2008 and signed by thousands of Chinese citizens. Charter 08 calls for political reforms and greater human rights in China. On June 3, 2008, police in Sichuan detained Li on charges of "Internet fraud." He had designed T-shirts blaming poor construction for the large number of casualties in the May 2008 Sichuan earthquake. Two days later, he was transferred to Changsha, where he was detained for one month. He was released but kept under residential surveillance until September 18. He is reportedly a member of the Pan Blue Alliance, a group that declares allegiance to Sun Yat-sen.

Wu’s detention came about an hour after an open letter he and five others signed was made public and days before the 20th anniversary of the 1989 Tiananmen protests. The letter, addressed to President Hu Jintao and other Chinese leaders, sought economic redress for those imprisoned in the protests. In 1989, officials sentenced Wu, then a teacher, to two years in prison for leading student protests in Zhejiang. The open letter said ex-prisoners had no regular jobs, pensions, or medical insurance. Wu had also joined thousands of Chinese citizens in signing Charter 08, a document calling for human rights and political reforms. The charges against Wu are not known and police reportedly provided no documents for Wu’s detention. CHRD reported on June 11 that Wu was still detained in Zhejiang.

On April 21, 2006, the Wuling District People's Procuratorate indicted 9 persons for "using a cult to undermine implementation of the law" (Criminal Law, Art. 300) by making and disseminating the materials: Guo Zhaoqing, Yin Hong, Wang Xiaoqun, Yang Bin, Zhang Chuntao, Shi Yuhua, He Silian, Yang Dongzhi, and Xiong Bifang. Yang Bin was the only male. Guo Zhaoqing, named as the "head perpetrator," escaped from a hospital on April 23. On May 18, 2006, sentencing (presumably by the Wuling District People's Court) took place: 7 years and 6 months in prison for Yang Dongzhi; 8 years' imprisonment for the others. Police captured Guo in April 2009 (Clear Wisdom, 15 August 10). A Hunan court sentenced her in December 2009 to 10 years in prison and transferred her to Hunan Women's Prison. After police beatings, she suffers from numbness and paralysis in her legs and cannot walk or care for herself.

Sichuan Province	According to April 2009 Phayul and Tibetan government-in-exile reports, on April 1, 2009, public security officials in Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi TAP, Sichuan province, "ransacked" Tsitsang Monastery, located in Ganzi county, and then detained five Tsitsang Monastery monks. The reports identified one of the five monks, Sonam Nyima, and described him as a 40 year-old with an administrative position at the monastery. Information about the reason for the detentions is not available; the Phayul report characterized them as "arbitrary." RFA and TCHRD reported the detention on March 19 of another Tsitsang monk as well as other local residents for alleged involvement in a local "farming boycott movement." It is unclear if the detention of the five Tsitsang monks, including Sonam Nyima, on April 1 is related to the previous detentions or the boycott. No information is available about Sonam Nyima's place of detention.

Ctr.	5	Sichuan Province	The Chengdu Intermediate People's Court in Sichuan province sentenced writer and environmental activist Tan Zuoren to five years in prison and an additional three years’ deprivation of political rights on February 9, 2010, for “inciting subversion of state power.” The court reportedly convicted Tan for attempting to organize activities to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the June 1989 Tiananmen protests. The court said Tan posted articles on the Internet about the 20th anniversary and had contact with “hostile foreign forces” such as Tiananmen exile and student leader Wang Dan. Tan had been active in calling for the government to investigate the cause of the large number of school collapses in the May 2008 Sichuan earthquake. He began his own investigation and had published preliminary results before his detention in March 2009. The conduct of his trial on August 12, 2009, reportedly was marred by official abuses and procedural violations.

Sichuan Province	According to Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD), public security officers in Chengdu detained rights activist Zeng Rongkang on March 20, 2009, for allegedly “gathering crowds to disturb social order.” His detention related to a February 23, 2009 protest at the Chengdu Intermediate People’s Court, in which many aggrieved citizens demonstrated, demanding justice. According to CHRD, Zeng has engaged in citizens’ rights defense work for a long time. At least four other individuals -- Huang Xiaomin, Xing Qingxian, Lu Dajun and Yan Wenhan -- were arrested for “disturbing social order” following the February 23 protest. CHRD further reported that the police told Zeng that they considered him the primary culprit in the February 23 protest and would therefore deal with him harshly. Authorities formally arrested him on April 1, and he is currently being held at the Chengdu Municipal Detention Center. He will reportedly be tried sometime in mid-February 2010.

Sichuan Province	According to a March 15, 2009, Radio Free Asia (RFA) report, on March 11-12 and March 14-15, Tibetan “youths” staged small, peaceful political protests in the seat of Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi TAP, Sichuan province. Security forces maintained a “massive” security presence at the time due to a series of sensitive dates (e.g. March 10 and March 28). On March 11, three teenage females, two of whom RFA identified as Choetso (age 16) and Tsering Wangmo (17), scattered leaflets and shouted slogans calling for Tibetan independence and the Dalai Lama’s return to Tibet. Approximately 50 security officials detained the three girls and took them away in a van. Two young Tibetan males, Sonam and Dawa Tsering, staged similar protests in the Ganzi county seat on March 12 and March 14 respectively. The RFA report implied, but did not state, that the boys were detained. Information is not available about the juvenile protesters’ place of detention or whether their families have access to them.

The report did not identify the reason for the detentions but noted that police "ransacked" the detainees' homes and confiscated computers and personal items. Officials allegedly tortured "some" detainees while they were held at the Gaomi Detention Center. On a date probably in early November 2009, based on report details, the Gaomi City People's Court sentenced the defendants to imprisonment: Guo Hongfa, 7 years; Xue Jiagui, 3 years and 6 months; Zhang Guizhi, 4 years; Mao Yongfang, 6 years; Mao Yongchun and Ren Yuying, 4 years and 6 months. Information is not available on criminal charges. Officials transferred the men to Shandong No. 1 Prison and the women to Shandong Women's Prison. Officials permitted Mao Yongchun to serve her sentence "outside of prison" (details unavailable).

(general location)	15	Gansu Province	According to a TCHRD report (7 March 09), on February 26, 2009, public security officials detained Konchog Tsephel from his home in Maqu (Machu) county, Gannan (Kanlho) TAP, Gansu province. He operated a Tibetan-language Web site, Chomei (The Lamp), that he and a Tibetan poet established in 2005 and that featured Tibetan cultural content. Officials searched his home, confiscated his computer, and took him to a detention center in Gannan. After a closed trial, the Gannan Intermediate People’s Court sentenced Konchog Tsephel on November 12, 2009, to 15 years in prison for disclosing state secrets (Criminal Law, Art. 111), according to an ICT report (16 November 09). Information is unavailable on his prison location. The Tibetan writer Woeser said in a Middle Way blog entry (Chinese, 19 December 09) that he published essays on the 2008 Tibetan protests and “oppression of Tibetans” during the protests. From 1989 to 1994 Konchog Tsephel visited India and attended a Tibetan-run school for 3 years; he attended universities in Beijing and Lanzhou city, Gansu’s capital, from 1996 to 1999. Gansu PSB officials detained him for 2 months in 1995 and allegedly tortured him under interrogation.

Ctr.	3	Sichuan Province	According to a January 4, 2010, Leshan City Shizhong District People's Procuratorate Indictment (4 January 10, via HRIC), public security officers in Jinniu district, Chengdu city, Sichuan province, detained activist Bao Junsheng on February 24, 2009, on suspicion of "gathering a crowd to disturb social order." According to HRIC (28 September 10), the previous day, Bao, Liu Jiwei, Zeng Li, and others had staged a protest outside of the Chengdu Intermediate People's Court "to draw attention to their previously unanswered petitions." Bao, Liu, and others reportedly hung banners from a nearby department store, while other petitioners displayed placards and hats with rights defense slogans. Jinniu district public security officers formally arrested Bao on April 1, 2010. According to HRIC (28 September 10) and RFA (28 September 10), the Shizhong District People's Court in Leshan, Sichuan province, sentenced Bao on September 28, 2010, to three years' imprisonment for "gathering a crowd to disturb social order," a crime under Criminal Law Article 290(1). Bao was last known to be held at the Leshan PSB detention center. The location at which he is currently serving his sentence is unknown.

After interrogation authorities criminally detained Huang. Huang had served as a judge at the Tumuxiuke Court, within the Xinjiang Production and Construction Corps, and had earlier been in the army in Qinghai province. While in the army, Huang had been involved in nuclear testing. A 2007 government notice mandated that dismissed soldiers who were involved in such activity be given medical tests and benefits for resulting damage to their health. In 2008, Huang led 17 army veterans to the Bureau of Civil Affairs and complained that this notice had not been implemented locally. The bureau recognized that the notice was applicable to Huang's group, but they have so far received no testing or benefits. Huang is currently being held at Tumuxiuke Detention Center in Bachu county, Kashgar municipality.

Police accused Tenzin, who owns a Lhasa music shop, of downloading from the Internet “illegal music.” The HPPE article observed that the “illegal” aspect of the music was related to political content, not piracy. A police crackdown on “reactionary” music was underway at the time of, or shortly before, Tashi’s detention. Tibet Daily reported on December 25, 2008, that Lhasa police had detained five persons in December who had “illegally downloaded reactionary songs from the Internet” and sold copies in local shops at an “exorbitant profit.” Information is not available about Tashi’s place of detention or criminal charges, if any, against him.

On January 27, the Furong District People’s Court in Changsha sentenced Hou to 3 years in prison for allegedly “gathering” and “disturbing public order” while petitioning. On April 12, 2007, the same court had sentenced Hou to 3 years in prison (suspended for 4 years) on the same charges for petitioning in Beijing. Hou continued petitioning while serving the period of suspension and left Changsha 6 times without reporting to the PSB. At the request of the Furong PSB, the Furong District People’s Court established a council to reexamine the case and rescinded Hou’s suspension. Because Hou had served 11 months and 16 days in prison prior to the 2007 sentence, her new sentence expires on February 9, 2011.

The Beijing High People's Court denied his appeal on February 11, 2010. Prosecutors said Liu drafted and organized Charter 08, signed by thousands of Chinese and calling for political reform and protection of human rights. Liu was also punished for six essays he wrote that were posted on overseas Web sites. The essays were critical of Chinese Communist Party rule but did not advocate violence; one specifically called for non-violence. The 54-year-old Liu was taken into custody on December 8, 2008, a day before Charter 08 was released. He was kept in residential surveillance under conditions that violated Chinese law and arrested on June 23, 2009. Liu was detained in 1989 after the Tiananmen protests and served three years reeducation through labor for his writings in 1996. He is serving his sentence at the Jinzhou Prison in Liaoning province. On October 8, 2010, the Norwegian Nobel Committee awarded Liu the Nobel Peace Prize for 2010.

Region	According to a November 17, 2008, International Campaign for Tibet (ICT) report, on October 31, 2008, People's Armed Police officers detained 81-year-old Paljor Norbu in Lhasa, the capital of the Tibet Autonomous Region. Paljor Norbu headed a family-run business located in Lhasa's Barkor neighborhood that for generations had printed Buddhist texts for monasteries, according to the report. PSB officials closed down the business after Paljor Norbu's detention and removed a substantial number of wooden printing blocks. (Seizing the printing blocks may suggest that authorities suspected him printing banned religious texts.) Police had not informed Paljor Norbu's family of his location. According to the ICT source, as of the November 17, 2008, report date, Paljor Norbu had already been sentenced to seven years' imprisonment. (Based on Commission analysis, it would be unusual for a criminal case to proceed from initial detention to judicial sentencing in less than three weeks.)

Ctr.	9	Sichuan Province	Zhou Yongjun, a U.S. green card holder and exiled Tiananmen student leader, who had repeatedly tried to obtain a PRC passport, used a false passport to enter Hong Kong in late September 2008, according to news reports. At that point, police questioned him about a suspicious bank money transfer request, but handed him back over to HK immigration officials. For unknown reasons, HK officials took him to Shenzhen, Guangdong, and surrendered him to Shenzhen police, who detained him in early October. Chinese authorities reportedly held Zhou secretly in detention centers in Shenzhen before finally notifying his family in May 2009 that he was in the Suining Municipal Detention Center in Sichuan. The Suining PSB arrested Zhou Yongjun for "fraud" on May 8, 2009 and Shehong County People's Court indicted him on August 3, 2009. The court tried Zhou on November 19, 2009 and on January 15, 2010, fined him $80,000 yuan (US$11,700) and sentenced him to nine years imprisonment for "attempted fraud."

The men, Asang Bersatsang, Ngoso Konkyabtsang, Jamsang, and Gado, staged a protest at the township site where local officials planned to conduct a festival celebrating the upcoming August 8 opening of Beijing Olympic Games. As officials and residents prepared the festival site three days before its July 29 start, the men distributed leaflets and shouted slogans saying that there should be no celebration because Tibetans had suffered so much repression by China in 2008; that Tibetans should mourn and pray for Tibetans who died or were detained during the 2008 Tibetan protests; and that Tibetans want freedom and the Dalai Lama’s return. Security officials took the men to the Nangchen PSB Detention Center. No information is available criminal charges, if any, against them.

Security officials detained housing rights activist Ye Guozhu on August 27, 2004, after he applied for a permit to hold a protest against forced evictions in Beijing. Ye was sentenced on December 18, 2004 to four years in prison for "disturbing public order." Radio Free Asia reported that Ye's whereabouts were unknown for about a year and that he suffered severe abuse while in detention. Ye was due to be released from Chaobai Prison, located in Tianjin municipality, on July 26, 2008. According to CHRD and HRIC, Beijing public security officers took him away from prison a few days before his scheduled release date, and on July 26, formally detained him on suspicion of "gathering a crowd to disturb public order." According to CHRD and Ye's brother Ye Guoqiang, on September 29, 2008, Ye signed an "eviction compensation agreement" under threat of more detention and possibly another trial if he did not sign. Ye was released on bail from the Beijing Xuanwu Detention Center on October 15.

(Xinduqiao)	5	Sichuan Province	According to an August 2009 Phayul report, public security officials detained 37 year-old Sanggye Tashi after he staged a political protest on June 21, 2008, in the seat of Ganzi (Kardze) county, Ganzi Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan province. (The report does not state whether police detained him at the time of the protest or on a later date. Tibetans who stage small protests are often detained as they protest.) Sanggye Tashi tied a bandana around his head on which he wrote “Free Tibet,” painted a likeness of the Tibetan flag on his face, and shouted slogans calling for a free Tibet and the Dalai Lama’s long life. According to the Tehor Welfare Society, a Tibetan group based in India, on or about August 3, 2009, a Ganzi court (probably the Ganzi Intermediate People’s Court) sentenced Sanggye Tashi to five years in prison on the charge of “inciting splittism” (a crime under Article 103 of the PRC Criminal Law). The priests, Rev. Zhang Li and Rev. Zhang Jianlin, intended to travel to the Sheshan shrine in Shanghai municipality, an annual pilgrimage undertaken by thousands of Catholic Chinese. However, government authorities have reportedly tried to curtail the pilgrimage this year. Zhang Li, who planned to go to Sheshan on May 24, was allegedly detained by Xuanhua police a few days before, while security officials intercepted Zhang Jianlin in Nanjing on May 24 and sent him back to Xuanhua, where police detained him. No additional information about the two priests' place of detention or charges against them, if any, is available.

Officials suspected them of participating in a March 14 attempted protest march from Ratoe to the Nyethang government office. Security officials blocked and dispersed the monks and laypersons who joined them before they reached the office. Officials later released 18 monks but held 32 of them in the Qushui detention center, including Namkar (or Gyaltsen Choedrag) and Thubchog (a member of the Ratoe Democratic Management Committee). No additional information is available about the monks, including criminal charges, if any, against them. According to TIN database information, Gyaltsen Choedrag previously served a 3-year prison sentence in TAR Prison (Drapchi) for "counterrevolutionary propaganda and incitement" after he participated in the March 1989 Lhasa protests.

Region	According to a Tibetan Centre for Human Rights and Democracy (TCHRD) report, on April 7, 2008, public security officials in Lhasa, capital of the Tibet Autonomous Region, detained approximately 70 monks from Ramoche Monastery, located in central Lhasa. After several days of interrogation, authorities released all of the monks but five: former Ramoche treasurer Sonam Rabgyal, Dadrul, Rabgyal, and two unnamed monks. Prior to the April detentions, patriotic education instructors at Ramoche had learned that the five monks took the lead during a mid-February Tibetan Buddhist festival in arranging prayers for the Dalai Lama's long life and a "quick resolution to the Tibet issue." At that time, patriotic education officials interrogated the five monks for several days. According to TCHRD, as of September 2008 no information was available about the location of Sonam Rabgyal, Dadrul, Rabgyal, and the two unnamed monks. No information is available about criminal charges, if any, against them.

According to Ganzi Daily, he “colluded” with Jigme Gonpo, a student at a Tibetan Buddhist thangka painting academy in Kangding, to produce the flag. Shopkeepers closed businesses in fear that a riot would ensue, Ganzi Daily said. On October 29, 2008, the Ganzi Intermediate People’s Court, located in Kangding, sentenced Sherab Zangpo to six years in prison for “inciting splittism.” No information is available about his place of imprisonment. Jigme Gonpo faced prosecution in a separate case, Ganzi Daily said. Dongthog Monastery, located in Ganzi county, Ganzi TAP, adheres to the Sakya tradition of Tibetan Buddhism.

Police detained filmmaker Dondrub Wangchen on March 26 in Tongde county, Hainan TAP, Qinghai, and his assistant Jigme Gyatso (a Labrang Tashikhyil monk) on March 23, possibly in Linxia Hui Auto. Pref., Gansu province. The men filmed 108 Tibetans, most of whom chose to speak on camera without concealing their identities. The film left China before police detained the men. The documentary, featuring 20 of the Tibetans, debuted in August 2008. According to a Phayul report, on October 15 officials released Jigme Gyatso from a Linxia city detention center where he was tortured. TCHRD reported that security officials returned him to detention on March 10, 2009.

Region	According to a September 10, 2009, TCHRD report, on March 10, 2008, public security officials detained Drepung Monastery monk Kalden and his brother Samdrub, also a Drepung monk, for participating in a peaceful march that day by more than 300 Drepung monks. The monks attempted to march from the monastery to the center of Lhasa city, the TAR capital, but police and PAP blocked them and reportedly detained a number of monks. According to TCHRD, “multiple sources” confirmed that Kalden died in a police detention center in mid-August 2009 as a result of torture and maltreatment. Authorities handed his body over to relatives in Lhasa the same month. As of August 2009, the family had no information about the status or location of Samdrub. In addition to the name Kalden, probably a lay name, additional reports on the death included what may have been Kalden’s monastic name, but the reports were inconsistent: Lhundup Phuntsok (Lhundrub Phuntsog), Phuntsok Lhundup (Phuntsog Lhundrub), and Ngawang Woepel (Ngawang Oepal). It is unclear which, if any, of the names were another name for Kalden.

Region	According RFA and TCHRD reports, a group of 11-16 Tibetans, all or mostly monks from monasteries outside the TAR but studying temporarily at Sera Monastery in Lhasa, staged a political protest on Lhasa’s Barkor street at mid-day on March 10, 2008. The protestors shouted slogans and waved flags; security personnel apprehended and reportedly beat them then took them to an unknown location. According to an official Chinese report, the group included 15 protestors of whom the Lhasa Procuratorate formally arrested 13 on March 24 on charges of unlawful assembly. The report named Lodroe as the group’s leader; he was the first to hold up a Tibetan flag and may have been charged with a different crime. Monk Zoepa of Mingge Monastery, located in Jiuzhi (Chigdril) county in Guoluo (Golog) TAP in Qinghai province, was one of the protestors charged with illegal assembly. Phayul reported in August 2009 that Zoepa (“Mangay Zoepa”) was serving a 5-year sentence in Qushui Prison.

2008-00353	DET	speech	Han	Chen Lianqing	陈连清					M	43	admin-RTL	2008/03/05	Shijiazhuang RTL Ctr.	1	Hebei Province	According to Boxun, China Free Press, and China Human Rights Defenders, on March 5, 2008, public security officials from Shijiazhuang city, the capital of Hebei province, detained petitioner Chen Lianqing while he was in Beijing petitioning near the National People's Congress building about a matter related to his father's death. Shijiazhuang native Chen, age 43, claims that local police have protected the person responsible for the 2004 death of his father. Chen has petitioned in Beijing several times and has subsequently been detained for brief periods several times. Official documents obtained by Boxun provide evidence that the Shijiazhuang RTL Management Committee sentenced Chen to 18 months' reeducation through labor (RTL) for "disturbing social order." Chen's appeal at a March 25 hearing was rejected, and his family was informed of the sentence on June 4, 2008. He is serving his sentence at the Shijiazhuang RTL Camp.

Authorities reportedly held Liu at the Beiyuan Road Police Station before transferring him to a "transformation through reeducation center"—a location where authorities attempt to pressure FLG practitioners to renounce their belief in FLG—in Linyi city, Shandong. On March 31, 2008, he reportedly was transferred to the custody of Linyi domestic security protection personnel, where he allegedly was tortured. According to Clear Wisdom (25 August 08), the Lanshan District People's Court sentenced Liu Yongjin to 7 years' imprisonment on an unreported date in 2008. Sources did not provide information on charges. Liu underwent a physical examination at Jinan City Prison and was reportedly diagnosed with hepatitis B, tuberculosis and other diseases. According to Clear Wisdom (8 December 08, 24 November 08), authorities transferred Liu to Tai'an Prison, Tai'an, Shandong, in June 2008, after authorities at Jinan and Linyi Prisons reportedly rejected him due to health issues.

According to UNHRC (2 March 10), authorities charged him with inciting separatism and leaking state secrets. His lawyer said that Alimjan previously told a U.S. citizen in Xinjiang about an interview between Alimjan and local authorities about Alimjan's preaching activities, and that the interview's contents were later classified as a state secret. His trial began on May 27, 2008, but the Kashgar Intermediate People's Court reportedly returned the case to the procuratorate due to "insufficient evidence." The trial resumed on July 28, 2009, and on August 6, the court sentenced Alimjan to 15 years in prison for "leaking state secrets" to foreign organizations, a crime under Art. 111 of China's Criminal Law. On March 16, 2010, the XUAR High People's Court rejected Alimjan's appeal. In a December 27, 2010 letter, the court denied a request by Alimjan's family to retry the case. Information is unavailable on the criminal charges against the women or their place of imprisonment. According to the reports, the court ruled at the first two trials that evidence against the women was insufficient, and a PSB official allegedly admitted falsifying a list of evidence to include hundreds of books, CDs, and tape recordings. Information is unavailable on the evidence the court accepted prior to sentencing. Feng Wenzhen is the wife of Zhao Xiaochang, detained in September 2009 in connection to Falun Gong practice.

Another TCHRD source suggested that police detained the 30 year-old monk because of his association with Kunkhyen, whom officials detained on August 22. An RFA report described Kunkhyen as a school teacher who may have had a video camera at a Lithang horse racing festival on August 1, when Tibetan nomad Ronggye Adrag climbed onto a stage and allegedly shouted slogans, including a call for the Dalai Lama’s return to Tibet. Lobsang Phuntsog, who led the monastery’s traditional cham dancing troupe, may be held in the Lithang PSB Detention Center. No information about criminal charges against him is available.

Officials alleged that a petition Yang helped organize harmed China’s image, and also accused him of writing essays critical of the Communist Party and accepting 10,000 yuan from a “hostile” foreign group. The petition, titled “We Want Human Rights, Not the Olympics,” was made on behalf of farmers seeking to reclaim land seized by the government. Fellow petition organizers, Yu Changwu and Wang Guilin, were also punished. Yang is serving his sentence at the Xianglan Prison in Heilongjiang.

Wen Yan	文炎	Sun Buer				M	26	chg/tri/sent	2007/06/22	Hanxi Prison	6	Hubei Province	According to CHRD (8 June 11) and RFA (via Boxun, 9 June 11 and via Free China Forum, 16 December 08), Wuhan city, Hubei province, PSB officials detained democracy advocate Wen Yan (aka, Sun Buer) on June 22, 2007, on suspicion of “inciting subversion.” Authorities arrested Sun on July 22, 2007, and the Wuhan Intermediate People’s Court sentenced him on December 11, 2009, to six years’ in prison. Sun reportedly is a founding member of the banned political party Pan-Blue Alliance of Chinese Nationalists. After holding Sun in the Wuhan city No. 2 detention center for more than 10 months, officials reportedly placed him under residential surveillance between May 7, 2008 & November 6, 2008; news reports do not clarify if officials released Yao on bail during that time. Sun reported that authorities harassed his parents and that he had been mistreated while in detention. Previously, officials briefly detained Sun on suspicion of “teaching another how to commit a crime” and arrested him on December 19, 2008, on suspicion of “illegally crossing the border,” but he was not convicted of this charge. Sun is currently in Hanxi Prison in Wuhan city, Hubei.

According to a Jiangyong human rights defender quoted in the article, He Fangwu had been publicizing local officials' involvement in manufacturing and trafficking illegal drugs for several years prior to his detention in 1998 on charges of "harboring" a relative who was allegedly "evading her population planning responsibilities." As a result of circumstances surrounding the detention, He's wife left him and his parents' physical conditions deteriorated to the point of death. After his release, He petitioned persistently for justice for his case. Authorities continued to detain He, holding him involuntarily in a psychiatric hospital four times. As of July 2009, He was in custody at the Yongzhou City Psychiatric Hospital.

Yuan Weijing	袁伟静				teacher, English	F	30	PSB-house	2006/11/28	Shandong (general location)		Shandong Province	According to CHRD (13 February 07), authorities placed legal advocate Chen Guangcheng, his wife Yuan Weijing, and their children under home confinement in Dongshigu village, Linyi city, Shandong province, on August 12, 2007. According to CHRD, Chen and Yuan began reporting population planning abuses in Linyi in April 2005. According to CHRD and Radio Free Asia (29 November 06), local police detained Yuan for questioning and issued an order placing her under residential surveillance on November 28, 2006. The order accused Yuan of "intentional destruction of property" and "gathering people to disturb traffic order." Authorities lifted the order on May 27, 2007, but Yuan has remained under surveillance and home confinement. Chen and Yuan released video footage via CAA (9 Feb 11), detailing official maltreatment of the family since Chen's September 9, 2010, release from prison. According to CAA (10 Feb 11) and CHRD (via Boxun, 21 Feb 11), officials severely beat Chen and Yuan twice following the video's release. Also according to CSCL (via CAA 18 Feb 11), officials beat and detained rights defenders who met in Beijing regarding Chen's case.

Chen Qian	陈签					M	56	chg?/tri?/sent?	2006/11/09	Guangdong (general location)		Guangdong Province	According to Citizens Rights Net and the Network of Chinese Human Rights Defenders, Chen Qian was targeted by the government for his activism on behalf of villagers in Shanwei city, Guangdong province, where local officials reportedly authorized paramilitary police to fire on a crowd of land protestors in December 2005. Chen, a villager of Dongzhou, had his land requisitioned by a village committee, but received no compensation in exchange. Officials from the Honghaiwan Public Security Bureau took him into custody on November 9, 2006, as he was hanging an anti-corruption banner in public. Xinhua said that he had been held for assaulting a village committee official. Chen's detention sparked a clash between villagers and police on November 10, and resulted in the hostage-taking of eight officials. Authorities refused to negotiate, instead announcing on November 16 that they had sentenced Chen to prison. The government's charge, length of Chen's sentence, and prison location are unknown.

Gao Zhisheng, founder of the Beijing Shengzhi Law Firm, has represented numerous activists and religious groups. On October 18, 2005, Gao wrote an open letter to exposing widespread torture against Falun Gong practitioners. On November 4, officials closed his law firm and began a campaign of harassment against Gao, his family, and associates. Authorities abducted Gao on August 15, 2006, and formally arrested him on September 21. He was convicted on December 22 of "inciting subversion of state power" and subjected to a three-year sentence, suspended for five years. After Gao sent an open letter to the U.S. Congress in September 2007, he was taken away by public security, and then held and tortured for over 50 days. Gao disappeared on February 4, 2009, into official custody. On March 28, 2010, Gao contacted his family, associates, and news outlets for the first time since his disappearance. In late March and early April 2010, Gao gave several interviews, during which he reportedly appeared to be under surveillance. In late April 2010, Gao again appeared to have disappeared after visiting family in western China. His exact circumstances remain unclear.

On March 26, officials presented Chen Guangdong with a formal arrest warrant, dated March 22, charging him with destruction of public property. Dongshigu village residents have clashed with police repeatedly since September 2005, when officials placed village resident Chen Guangcheng under house arrest for reporting abuses of the population planning policy. Chen Guangcheng, a self-trained legal advocate, was abducted by officials in Beijing after he raised the issue of abuse in Linyi city. Linyi officials held him under house arrest for six months before formally detaining him on March 11, 2006.

Huang Xianyu	黄贤裕							chg?/tri-close?/sent-close?	2005/12/dd	Guangdong (general location)		Guangdong Province	Huang Xianyu was one of 40,000 residents from Dongzhoukeng village, in Shanwei city, Guangdong province, who were displaced when large tracts of land and Baisha Lake were requisitioned in 2002 to build a coal-fired power plant. Radio Free Asia and the Network of Chinese Human Rights Defenders reported he took part in a long-standing campaign to demand compensation from the government and oppose continued construction. The official government account said that in early December 2005, he and over 100 others seized control of a local wind farm at the behest of fellow villagers Huang Xijun, Huang Xirang, and Lin Hanru. Paramilitary police fired into the crowd on December 6 and detained him shortly thereafter. Over a dozen detainees were tried on May 22, 2006, and sentenced on May 24 for illegally manufacturing explosives, illegal assembly, and disturbing public order. Some detainees received suspended sentences and have since been released on probation. Huang’s sentence is unknown.

The government claimed that Zheng published 77 articles on the Epoch Times and Boxun Web sites. The Yingkou Intermediate People's Court in Liaoning said in its September 20, 2005, opinion, that Zheng had "employed rumors, defamation, and other means" to "attack China's political system," which "created a deleterious influence both within China and abroad." Zheng was detained on December 20, 2004, and arrested on December 31. The Yingkou court first heard his case on April 26, 2005. Zheng was moved to the Yingkou Farm Prison on January 10, 2006. Zheng's brother reported that Zheng has not received adequate treatment for his diabetes.

The story tells of a caged bird who commits suicide rather than live without freedom. According to Dui Hua, on February 2, 2005, the Bachu (Maralbeshi) County People's Court sentenced Nurmemet Yasin to 10 years' imprisonment for "inciting racial hatred or discrimination," a crime under Article 249 of the Criminal Law. Some sources have reported that the sentence was for "inciting splittism," a crime under Article 103 of the Criminal Law. On July 14, 2005, the same court sentenced Korash Huseyin, editor of the Kashgar Literature Journal, to three years' imprisonment for "dereliction of duty" for publishing Nurmemet Yasin's story. The Kashgar Intermediate People's Court upheld Nurmemet Yasin's sentence on appeal on March 17, 2005. He is currently held at Xinjiang No. 1 Prison.

Region	The Changsha Intermediate People's Court in Hunan province sentenced poet and journalist Shi Tao to 10 years' imprisonment on April 27, 2005, for disclosing state secrets to foreigners, a crime under Article 111 of the Criminal Law. The court found that Shi, then editorial director of Contemporary Trade News in Hunan, was informed at an editorial meeting about a secret Communist Party and government order. Reporters Without Borders said the order warned journalists about reporting during the 15th anniversary of the Tiananmen democracy protests. Shi e-mailed his notes about the order to the U.S.-based online newspaper "Democracy Forum." The Hunan High People's Court rejected Shi's appeal on June 2, 2005. Shi's conviction was based in part on evidence provided by Yahoo!'s China office. In November 2007, Yahoo! agreed to pay his family's legal expenses. Shi was detained on November 24, 2004, and arrested on December 14. In August 2010, Dui Hua reported that Shi was moved from a prison in Hunan province to the Yinchuan Prison in the Ningxia Hui Autonomous region in order facilitate family visits.

Wang studied medicine in Canada and in 1982 established a pro-democracy magazine in New York. In 1998, he returned to China to organize an opposition party, was arrested and deported. In June 2002, Chinese agents allegedly abducted Wang in Vietnam. China admitted in December 2002 that it had been holding Wang since July incommunicado on espionage and terrorism charges. Wang's closed trial was held on January 22, 2003. His conviction and life sentence were announced on February 10 and his appeal was rejected on February 28. The UN Working Group on Arbitrary Detention has declared Wang's detention arbitrary. Wang is kept under solitary confinement and suffers from phlebitis and respiratory problems. In May 2009, authorities prevented Wang's daughter Ti-Anna from entering China to visit her father despite having granted her a visa.

The Ganzi Intermediate People's Court alleged that Tenzin Deleg's case involved "state secrets" and conducted the trial in a closed court on November 29, 2002 (Xinhua, 26 January 03). The court sentenced him on December 2 to death with a 2-year reprieve for conspiring to cause explosions and 14 years in prison for inciting "splittism." The Sichuan High People's Court rejected his appeal on January 26, 2003, then commuted the sentence to life imprisonment on January 26, 2005 (Xinhua, 26 January 05). The CECC (February 2004) published reports on the case. Tenzin Deleg reportedly did not confess to the charges, declared his innocence during sentencing, and continues to deny the charges (RFA, 11 June 10). Prison officials told relatives visiting him in April 2010 that he is "suffering from ailments related to bones, heart, and blood pressure," RFA reported. Another Tibetan, Lobsang Dondrub, was sentenced to death on the same charges at the same trial and executed on January 26, 2003.

The organization members included Huang Xiangwei, Lin Shun'an, Lin Shuncheng, Lin Shunhan, Zhan Gongzhen, Zheng Xiaohua, and Lin Chan. They applied for a registration in 2000, but it was denied. In January 2001, they were accused of forming an illegal labor union and of downloading materials from the Internet and compiling them into a book entitled “Labor Unions.” The defendants were also accused of stockpiling firearms and training members to shoot out the windows of the office of the court's chief judge. But no evidence to substantiate the latter charges was made public. They were tried on subversion charges in October 30, 2003. According to Dui Hua, Li Jianfeng was sentenced to 16 years in prison; in December 2007 he received a 17-month sentence reduction.

According to Dui Hua and CLB, Wang Miaogen, a former manual worker and leading member of Shanghai Workers' Autonomous Federation, was detained and forcibly committed to the Shanghai Ankang Mental Hospital in April 1993 after he committed an act of self-mutilation in front of a Shanghai police station in public protest against having recently been severely beaten up by the police. Wang was held incommunicado at the Shanghai Ankang and released in May 1997, according to Dui Hua information, but authorities forcibly returned him to a psychiatric insitution in Shanghai in May 1999. No additional information is available about Wang. Prior to 1993, Wang was detained shortly after the 1989 government crackdown and underwent two years' "reeducation through labor" in untried police detention because of his involvement in the banned workers' group. He also had staged a hunger strike in front of PSB offices in Shanghai to protest the detention of fellow labor activists.

Based on information from official Chinese sources in the Dui Hua Official Registry and from unofficial reports, Chinese security officials detained Chen Yong, a worker and resident of Tangshan city in Hebei province, in June 1989. Chen allegedly attacked a security official during the 1989 pro-democracy demonstrations. Authorities charged Chen with "counterrevolutionary assault," a crime eliminated by the 1997 revision to the Criminal Law. The Beijing Intermediate People's Court sentenced Chen on December 8, 1989, to life imprisonment, which was subsequently reduced to a fixed-term sentence of unknown length on appeal. On June 1, 2009, Human Rights in China reported that, as of May 2009, Chen was imprisoned in Qincheng Prison in Beijing. Available information about the prisoner's alleged activity is inadequate to determine the level of violence, if any, involved. Charges of "counterrevolutionary" crime always entail a political component that can hinder objective assessment.

In January 1989, he was sentenced to death with a 2-year reprieve for pre-meditated murder. In January 1991, his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and in April 1993 to a fixed term of 20 years. In March 1991, he and another prisoner attempted to hand a letter on human rights to U.S. Ambassador James Lilley when he visited Drapchi Prison. Both prisoners were beaten, put into isolation cells, then transferred to Pome Prison where Lobsang Tenzin’s health was poor. According to a co-defendant who fled to India after release from prison, the men were repeatedly beaten and tortured. Lobsang Tenzin was moved to Qushui Prison, near Lhasa, in July 2005. His sentence will end on April 26, 2013, according to official information. According to a TCHRD report (13 August 11), Lobsang Tenzin’s health had deteriorated seriously and diabetes was causing him to suffer periods of blindness.
